LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Letters to the editor are welcome. Views on all matters are acceptable, following the guidelines of good taste. While there is no limit on length, brevity is encouraged. Letters are subject to editing for style and length. Each letter must contain name, address and signature. A phone number is needed for verification only. Anonymous letters are not accepted, but names of letter writers may be withheld upon request.

Remember Panetta's role

Dear Editor:
Although Congressman Panetta is for now safely ensconced in his seat in the House, his actions as chairman of the Congressional task force to handle the contested election in Indiana's 8th Congressional District should not be forgotten by his constituents here in the 16th District.

Although two vote counts had shown Republican McIntyre to be the winner, the Congressional task force declared Democrat McCloskey the winner by four votes, but their inconsistencies and change of rules in midstream make the outcome very suspect.

Under the circumstances the fair thing would have been to call a special election to allow the voters to determine who would represent them. How would we react to a similar scenario in this district? At the next Congressional election voters should remember Panetta's part in this sham.

The water mess

Dear Editor:
The water intensive heat of early July, so like September when gardens thirst, prompts this letter:

The water board's a woeful mess. Two million dollars down the drain and what's to show for gain? Just studies piled up back-to-back to obfuscate a scheming lack of intent to solve a crisis.

As developments go rolling on, our water supply is being drawn — down to rationing's level.

Let's ask for more, not less.
Or put developments on hold.

Bach a heretic?

Dear Editor:

With all the flap in the newspaper last year about the canonization of Junipero Serra and all the excitement this year of the Bach Festival and the tercentenary there is an interesting correlation between the two. The two actually have nothing in common: one was a cleric, one not. One was Spanish, one German. One a Roman Catholic, one a Protestant.

Johann Sebastian Bach is the single greatest thorn in the side of Roman Catholicism. Why? Roman Catholicism teaches that (and I quote from the Syllabus of Errors) issued by Pope Pius IX, 1864:

• Article 18. "Protestantism is not another and diversified form of the one true Christian religion in which it is possible to please God equally as in the Catholic Church."

• Article 21. "The church has power to define dogmatically the religion of the Catholic Church to be the only true religion."

• Article 77. "It is necessary even in the present day that the Catholic religion shall be held as the only religion of the state, to the exclusion of all other forms of worship."

Part of the ordination vows of every Roman Catholic priest is to take an oath on the Bible to defend the 80 articles of the Syllabus. The Second Vatican Council, which closed towards the end of 1965 repeated the claim of the Syllabus.

But back to Bach. If all this is so, then what in the world was God doing to raise up Bach — a Protestant, clearly someone made a mistake, was it God? Not likely! Was it Rome? Yes.

To pull this together we come back to the concept of canonization. One of the "in jokes" in the Roman camp is, maybe we could canonize Bach, to get rid of the problem. And the problem is the greatest liturgical music penned in human existence was written by a heretic.

Museum clarifies role

Dear Editor:

I am writing to correct a couple of inaccuracies I read recently (July 18) in your publication. Sam Colburn wrote, in his column, about exhibitions at the "Pacific Grove Museum of Art." In the same segment, he refers to the same institution as the "Pacific Grove Art Center."

This is misleading: the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art and the Pacific Grove Art Center are two different institutions. The Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art is primarily distinguished from the Pacific Grove Art Center by its collections.

The museum collects, conserves, and maintains more than 400 paintings of regional artists (past and present), more than 400 photographs concentrating on regional photographers, over 400 prints and drawings, 4,000-plus folk art objects, and a growing Asian art collection. We employ a conservator to maintain the good condition of these objects, which are stored in vaults with climate control and alarms. From our collections, we loan objects to other institutions for exhibitions and made objects available for scholars to study firsthand.

Mr. Colburn closes his article with a plea for the P.G. Art Center's support and the statement that the P.G. Art Center "is the only public institution on the peninsula where the unknown artist has a chance of being shown."

I believe the P.G. Art Center is an important organization serving a specific purpose for the Monterey Peninsula community. By providing classes and workshops in studio arts and by incorporating artists' studios with exhibition space, the Art Center creates a vital, exciting environment, and a unique learning opportunity is available there.

However, the Art Center is not the only public institution to show unknown or little-known artists. In the last two years alone, the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art has exhibited one-person or two-person shows by the following unknown or relatively unknown artists:

Pamela Harris, Rosalie Lang, Robert Windle, Pamela Robertson, Ray Farp, Buff Savo, Jerry Takigawa, Todd Friedlander, Alvin Thompson, Jean Wilsdon-Brenner, Steve Firstman, Milan Tiff, Winston Swift-Boyer, Deanna Forbes, Peggy Olsen, Elizabeth Lindsley, Robert Dix, Anita Tortorici, Dan Snyder, Clayton Bailey, Michael Bishop, Lynn Criswell.

The museum, in fact, has one gallery which is regularly devoted to unknown or emerging artists.

No statistical difference

Dear Editor:

The intriguing early look at the first 1,000 tabulated questionnaires from Carmel residents tripped over some basic statistical requirements. It may have been more interesting as written, but you should note the following:

• The article states "the majority (44.2 percent) believe cable service is adequate. However, there is a significant number (43.8 percent) of respondents who feel the cable service is inadequate."

The difference of .4 is not significant. Statisticians, who'd usually work at a 95 percent confidence level, would tell you the results were statistically the same. For a score with 1,000 interviews to be significantly higher than a score of 43.8 percent, a higher score of 48.2 percent would be required.

Similarly, there's no statistically significant difference (at least at a 95 percent confidence level) between the 29 percent who consider Carmel's streets "frequently crowded with parked vehicles..." and the 27.2 percent who disagree on that point.

Further, respondents (based on 1,000 tabulated interviews) don't oppose the ban on night hours for Carmel businesses. Statistically, those opposed (40.3 percent) are equal to those for the ban (39.4 percent).

Expect all of this to change, but probably not much, when the other half of the sample is tabulated.

More public restrooms

Dear Editor:

I am writing in reference to David Maradei's column in today's (Aug. 1) Carmel Pine Cone/Outlook. In that column, he states that Carmel has seven public restrooms for a one-square-mile, 4,700 resident city.

That may be true, but it is phrased in such a way to give the impression that the public restrooms are for those 4,700 residents.

I submit that the majority of the residents don't need public restrooms — they have their own — both at home and at work! Further, the restrooms at Forest Hill Park, the Forest Theatre, and Sunset Center (both in the main building and at the temporary City Hall) are used primarily by the users of these facilities. That leaves one set of permanent restrooms for the thousands of daily visitors to Carmel.

For a city whose primary industry is tourism, we sure treat the tourists shabbily. Even the smallest European town has adequate public restrooms facilities — when is Carmel going to realize that the tourist is the primary source of income that provides the level of services we Carmelites are so accustomed to? More public restrooms would sure be a step in the right direction.

Try tax again

Dear Editor:

I was most disappointed that the parcel tax failed at the recent election. However, there is no reason not to try again. In the early 1960s, the physical plant at Carmel High was literally falling apart, and there were a number of other pressing needs that needed funding. An override tax to achieve these goals was soundly defeated.

Some two years later, if memory serves correctly, then CUSD Superintendent Harris Taylor organized and directed a concerted effort to pass an override. The Parents Club was deeply involved, and many people spent many hours writing letters, making phone calls, and addressing groups in support of the override. On the second try, the tax passed handily.

The recent attempt to pass the parcel tax came at the worst possible time. The residents of the Carmel Unified School District were sharply divided over the recall, the district was operating with an interim superintendent, and no one was available to organize and direct a truly concerted effort in favor of the parcel tax.

I may hope only that when the CUSD settles down and at least a semblance of order has been achieved, our new Superintendent [Robert] Infelise will, as his predecessor of some years back did in the face of defeat, organize and direct a real effort to pass the tax. It will take a lot of effort by a lot of persons, but it can be done.

'Good neighbor' praised

Dear Editor:

For a couple of years now I have been very aware of one of our "good neighbors" here in Carmel Valley. Certainly it is apparent several times a year to all who habitually travel the Carmel Valley Road east of Laureles Grade Road.

I am referring to the colorful and artistic displays which appear, it seems magically, in celebration of various holidays throughout the year. Probably many of us anticipate seeing those happy reminders and realize the time and effort it has taken to create them.

Adrienne Engle, a talented, artistic and interesting lady, will be celebrating her 80th birthday this coming weekend. It is my feeling that we all owe Adrienne our thanks for being a "good neighbor" and our congratulations and good wishes for a wonderful 80th!

Carmel gets good news on water consumption; criticizes other cities

By MICHAEL GARDNER

THE CARMEL City Council finally received some good news about water supply Tuesday night and took the opportunity to level a few salvos at the rest of the Monterey Peninsula for not adopting more stringent conservation measures.

Planner Brian Roseth told the council that water supply problems throughout the California-American Water Co. service area are not as serious as originally thought.

Roseth reported that new data released by Cal-Am indicate city water consumption in 1984-85 was 97.8 percent of its allocation — almost 1 percent less than the city used in 1983-84.

Earlier Roseth had been told that the city consumed 99.6 percent of its allocation from the Monterey Peninsula Water Management

'I wish I could agree that the other cities are as concerned, but the evidence doesn't point to that,' Stephenson said.

District. If the city consumes its entire water supply the district can order a building moratorium.

The entire water district consumed 88.9 percent of its allocation, Roseth originally was informed.

But at a meeting with the technical advisory committee of the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District various city and county representatives learned that water use figures sometimes are inaccurate.

The original 99.7 percent figure for the city of Carmel was calculated by Cal-Am using different billing data than what had been used in the past five years.

Cal-Am was asked by the technical advisory committee to re-compute water use figures using the same statistical formula employed over the past five years so a more accurate comparison could be formulated.

New computations reveal that the city of Carmel dropped its water use from 98.7 percent in 1983-84 to 97.8 percent in 1984-85.

The nearly 1 percent drop indicates an overall water savings of 10.3 ac. ft. or 3.356 million gallons of water annually. (There are 325,851 gallons in an acre foot.)

In addition, the difference between the original incorrect Cal-Am figure of 99.6 percent and the new 97.8 percent number represents 6.7 million gallons of water annually.

The difference between Cal-Am's figures are magnified when studied on a peninsula-wide basis. The committee learned last week that residents of the peninsula used 16,527 ac. ft., or 88.9 percent of their available water supply from July 1, 1984 to June 30, 1985.

Last year the water use was 15,562 ac. ft., or 83.7 percent of the water supply indicating a tremendous jump of more than 6 percent.

BUT THE new, more accurate data reveal that district water consumption was 86.3 percent of the allocation. That is 2.6 percent less than originally reported by Cal-Am.

Although the new numbers represent water savings for the city of Carmel, Roseth still described 97.8 percent of the allocation as "an alarmingly high figure, but we think it's an encouraging sign."

Councilman Robert Stephenson, acting mayor while Mayor Charlotte Townsend is in Japan, took the opportunity to criticize other jurisdictions for not taking water conservation steps.

When Councilman David Maradei said "the other cities are extremely alarmed by their increase in water use," Stephenson rebutted:

"I wish I could agree with Dave that the other cities are as concerned, but the evidence doesn't point to that," Stephenson said.

Stephenson pointed to the new hotels approved in Seaside and Sand City and said: "It doesn't seem to me that they're too concerned."

And he said the continual hotel construction along Cannery Row in Monterey has not even been figured into that city's water use, which now is at about 90 percent of its allocation.

"They won't even have enough water for them (the hotels)," Stephenson said.

He also did not spare Carmel from criticism. Stephenson cited gas stations that use running water to clean sidewalks and curbs and also to wash cars.

"I don't think the city is doing as much as it might. We have a long ways to go," he said.

Alan Williams of Carmel suggested that the city "challenge" other cities to conserve water.

"Don't worry, somebody's going to say something," Stephenson said.

Armed with the still-high water use figures, the council unanimously and with no discussion adopted an extension of an emergency water conservation ordinance.

The ordinance is to be in effect until next spring to give the city an opportunity to prepare a comprehensive measure.

Under the water conservation rules, the city prohibits new businesses unless that new use consumes less water than the previous shop.

In addition, the city has eliminated the loophole that allowed high-water use businesses to replace shops if the new business conserved water elsewhere in the city.

Elimination of that loophole is expected to play a key role in the city council meeting of Aug. 23 when it reviews an application for an ice cream parlor. (See related story, page 22.)

A TECHNICAL advisory committee of the water district now has under study the water use figures and eventually is to make a recommendation to the board of directors on allocations.

The committee has asked each jurisdiction in the water district to provide information on development approved but not yet occupied, such as hotels, homes and businesses.

The reasoning is that peninsula water supply may be in even shorter supply once these new developments are completed and begin to use water.

A preliminary report on the water supply issue and how the technical advisory committee plans to proceed with its study is to be presented to the water district board of directors Monday, Aug. 12.

Directors will meet at 7:30 p.m. in the Monterey City Council chambers on Pacific and Jefferson streets, Monterey.

The technical advisory committee, which consists of planners and building officials from each jurisdiction in the district, received the bad news at its meeting of July 29.

The committee originally was to meet to discuss the allocation system developed by the district to ration the remaining water supply to the year 2000.

However, the committee decided to change its focus from the allocation system review to a more far-reaching analysis of the still-to-be occupied developments and how that new construction will affect water use this year.

Board to decide on erosion plan

THE FATE of the Boronda erosion control project, implementation of an irrigation system around wells in lower Carmel Valley, and a review of water quality considerations for proposed well fields are among the agenda items for the Aug. 12 board meeting of the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District. The meeting will convene at 7:30 p.m. at Monterey City Hall.

Ballots mailed by residents in the Boronda Bridge area will be tallied on Thursday, Aug. 7. If voters approve financing the project by a simple majority, a public hearing will be conducted at the board meeting to certify the election results and determine whether to proceed with the project.

If the board decides to proceed, benefit assessments will be set to be collected with property taxes. The maximum assessment is $8.06 per linear foot of riverfront for 100 parcels in the two-mile Boronda area. The board would also authorize staff to let bids for construction and secure easements from property owners.

Earlier this year, the board approved a design for a portable irrigation system to preserve vegetation surrounding four wells in lower Carmel Valley. Equipment has been ordered and district staff are in the process of obtaining permission from homeowners to irrigate their property. Staff will seek board direction on how to proceed with those who have denied permission.

In June the board reviewed a study on the potential of additional groundwater in the Seaside aquifer.

Fund delays won't affect freeway

DELAYS IN funding will not have a dramatic impact on the proposed Hatton Canyon Freeway, according to Ken Jones, project engineer for Caltrans in San Luis Obispo.

The California Transportation Commission last week officially confirmed previous staff recommendations that funding for Hatton Canyon Freeway in Carmel be delayed from fiscal year 1987-88 to fiscal year 1988-89.

The proposed four-lane freeway is to be constructed in Hatton Canyon east of Highway 1 between Carpenter and Rio roads. The freeway will cost an anticipated $24.5 million in 1988-89 dollars. Another $2 million is budgeted to replace a major sewage line through the freeway route.

When asked about the delay in funding, Jones told the Carmel Pine Cone/Carmel Valley Outlook Aug. 5: "That's just a matter of three months. It's not that big of a deal."

Jones explained that Caltrans had not planned to fund the project until spring of 1988. The delay actually will be just three months, he said.

"They (the commission) were looking for a way to balance the bucks statewide," Jones said.

Jones oversees a local citizen committee that is supposed to advise Caltrans on a freeway design. The committee has been stagnant for several months while Caltrans prepares detailed maps of the area and continues work on the environmental impact report.

The maps are expected to be completed "within the next two or three weeks," Jones said, and the committee will resume meeting "probably in September."

Hatton Canyon Freeway has been a controversial project for the past two decades. Supporters are convinced that the freeway will alleviate the massive traffic jams on Highway 1, especially between Ocean Avenue and Rio Road.

CVPOA board to meet

PRESIDENT Jerry Foote describes as routine the upcoming Aug. 14 session of the Carmel Valley Property Owners Association Board of Directors.

Directors will meet at 7:30 p.m. in St. Dunstan's Church off Robinson Canyon Road in Carmel Valley.

The agenda includes numerous updates on village improvement efforts, parks and trails, water management district, land use and a membership party, Foote said.

Spanish Bay project encounters further construction delays

DELAYS CONTINUE to plague a pair of major projects in Pebble Beach.

The most recent developments in the continued controversies over the Spanish Bay resort and the Pebble Beach Community Services District wastewater reclamation plant are:

- County Environmental Health Officer Walter Wong insists he has no plans to rescind his order that the Spanish Bay resort not begin construction until a Carmel Sanitary District expansion project is completed.

- The city of Carmel in a closed session July 31 discussed, but did not take any action on, whether it should continue to pursue a lawsuit that seeks to block development of the 270-room hotel, 80-condominium and golf course resort.

- The Monterey County Planning Commission has continued until Aug. 28 its review of the proposed conveyor belt system designed to haul sand from Sawmill Gulch to the resort site at the north end of Del Monte Forest near Pacific Grove.

- The Coastal Commission will allow public testimony on the proposed wastewater treatment plant at its Aug. 15 hearing in that seeks a new environmental review of the proposed wastewater reclamation plant.

Wong last week issued a surprise decision that prohibits Pebble Beach Co. from even starting construction on the resort and condominiums until after the Carmel effluent treatment plant expansion is completed.

Wong is concerned that once construction starts the county would have to allow Spanish Bay to continue to be developed even if the sewage plant does not meet the anticipated Dec. 1 completion date.

Pebble Beach Co. had not anticipated any sewage disposal problems since the plant expansion is expected to be completed before the resort opens.

The expansion initially will allow the plant to process an additional 600,000 gallons per day of which 200,000 will be allocated to Pebble Beach Community Services District, under terms of a contract between the Pebble Beach and Carmel Sanitary Districts. The resort is expected to generate 49,500 gallons of effluent daily.

Pebble Beach Co. last week met with county attorneys to try and work out an agreement whereby the county would not be liable if the Carmel treatment plant expansion were delayed.

However, Wong told the Carmel Pine Cone/Carmel Valley Outlook that he has not heard any reason to change his mind.

Pebble Beach Co. last week met with county attorneys to try and work out an agreement whereby the county would not be liable if the Carmel treatment plant expansion were delayed.

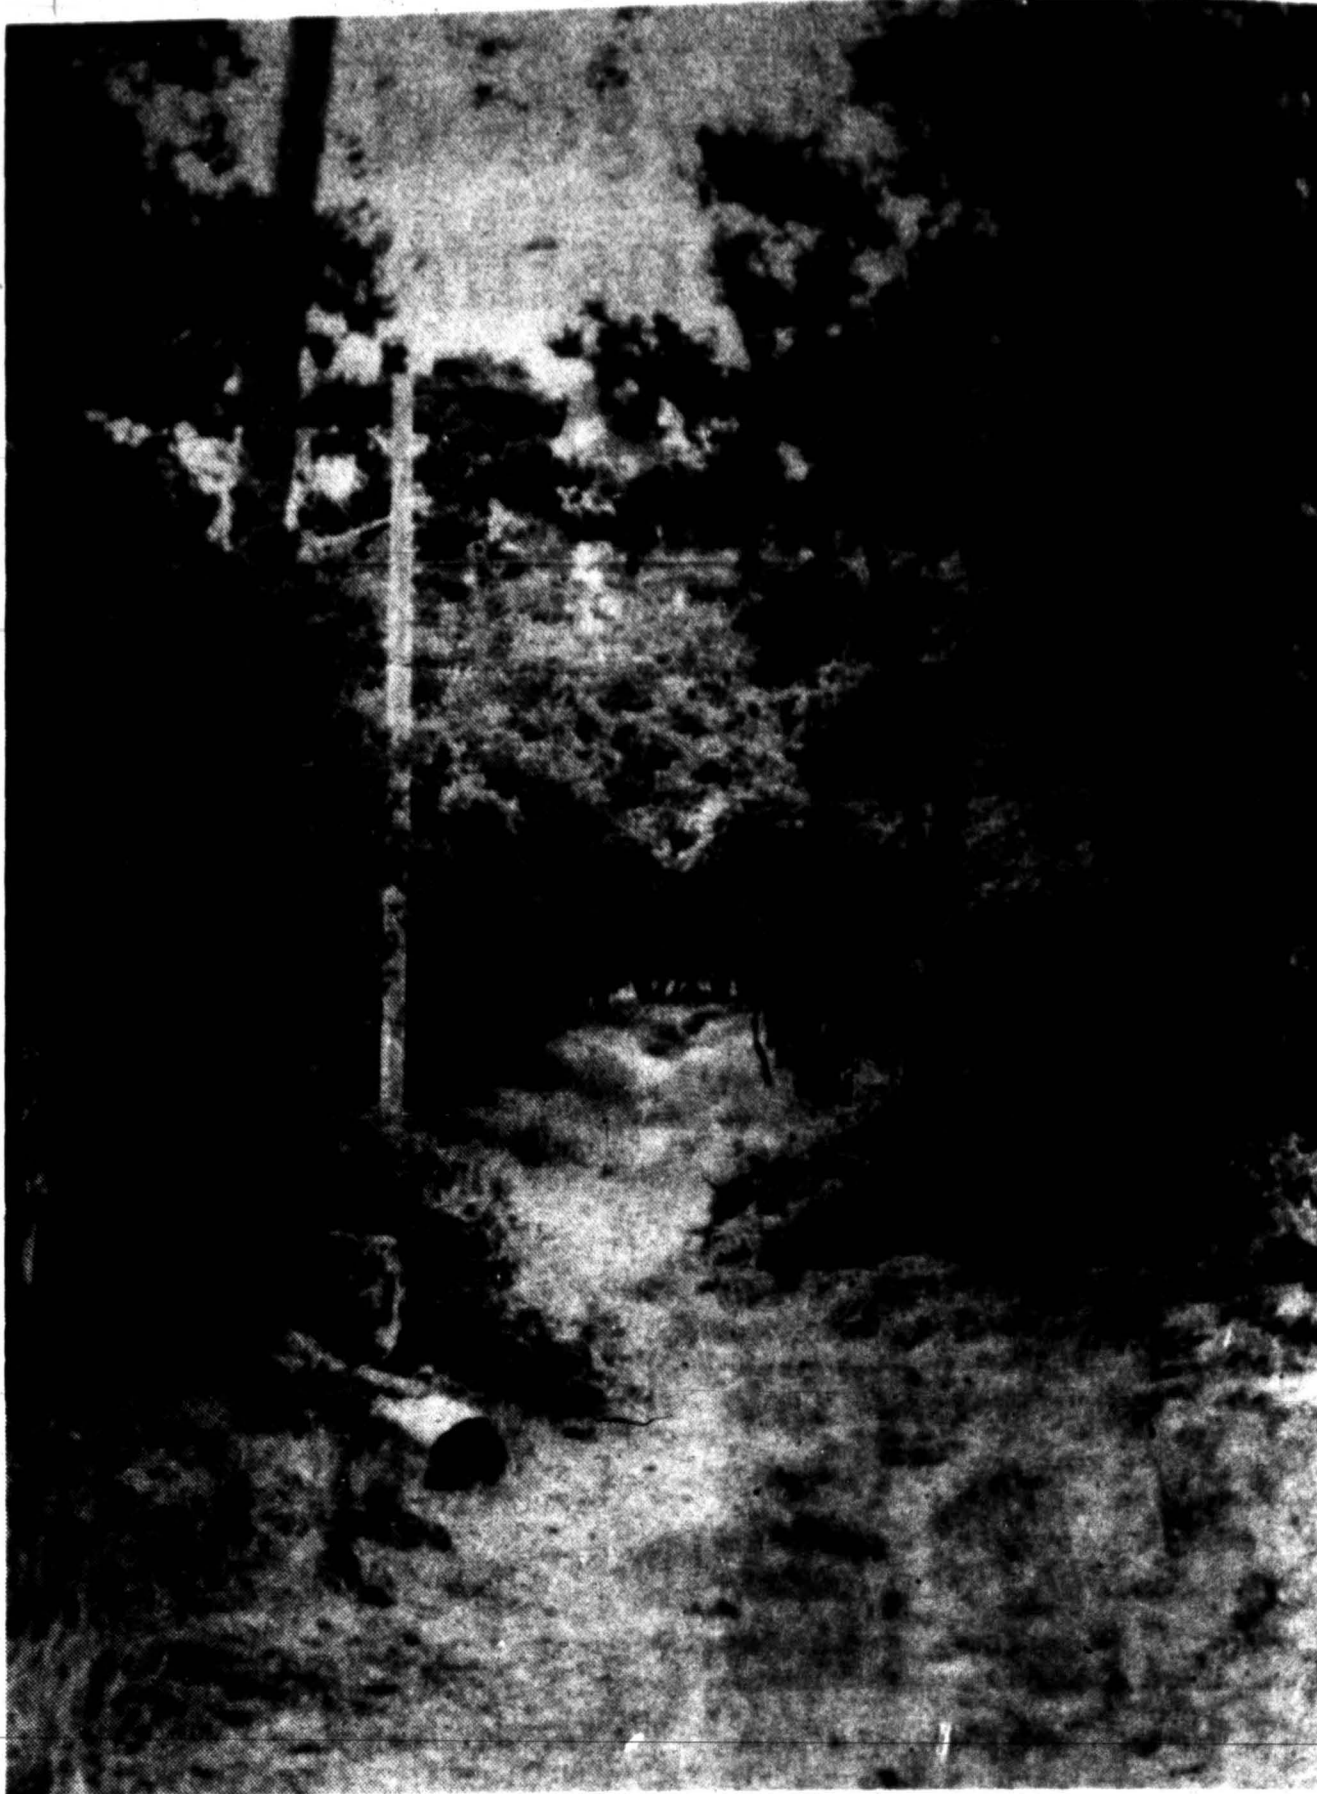

Eureka, but will continue the hearing until its Sept. 25-27 session in San Francisco.

- Monterey County Superior Court Judge Robert O'Farrell has under submission a suit

WONG ALSO questions some of the figures used by the company to convince him that there is capacity available for the resort even if the plant expansion is not finished.

Wong explained that Pebble Beach Co. bases its figures on flows for the past two years when rainfall was about four inches less than normal.

When rainfall increases, so does the amount of wastewater that flows into the Carmel Sanitary District plant, Wong said.

PEBBLE BEACH Co. continues to run into snags on its proposed conveyor belt to haul sand from Sawmill Gulch to the Spanish Bay resort site in Del Monte Forest. Arguments against the conveyor belt include noise, safety and environmental concern that the con-veyor belt will destroy forested areas such as the one above along the route. The county planning commission will review the application again Aug. 28. (Michael Gardner photo.)

Thus, during a dry year the sewage use figures are really less than what should be considered when making major decisions on whether a project has sewage capacity available, according to Wong.

In a separate matter related to Spanish Bay, the city of Carmel still is unsure whether to pursue legal action to block the project.

The city and co-plaintiff Monterey were rebuffed by Monterey County Superior Court Judge Robert O'Farrell in July.

But attorney Alexander Henson has indicated he would like to appeal. The city council met in a special closed door session July 31, but did not reach a conclusion. The council did not address the issue Aug. 6 because Mayor Charlotte Townsend is in Japan attending a peace conference.

The cities basically charge that the county and Coastal Commission erred in approvals of the project because Highway 68 already is at traffic capacity.

In another issue — this one before the county planning commission — Pebble Beach Co. continues in its efforts to win approval of a conveyor belt system that would haul sand from Sawmill Gulch to the Spanish Bay construction site.

The planning commission July 31 opened hearings on the supplemental environmental impact report for the conveyor belt, but continued the review until Aug. 28.

Pebble Beach Co. had wanted a delay until Aug. 14.

Monterey County Planning Director Robert Slimmon told the Carmel Pine Cone/Carmel Valley Outlook that the delay was a question of timing.

First, consultant Michael Groves was not

Planners to discuss compromise on condo design

By MICHAEL GARDNER

TWO TENTATIVELY approved Carmel condominium projects on Junipero Avenue may face design revisions in light of the proposed specific plan for the multiple-family residential (R-4) zone.

The Carmel Planning Commission will discuss a possible compromise to the sticky problem when it meets at 4 p.m. Wednesday, Aug. 14 in the Bingham Room at Sunset Center.

Planning staff has under study the propos-

If the specific plan is adopted, the proposed density, setback and height requirements 'would make their projects impossible to build,' Roseth said.

ed specific plan which details density, setback, height limits, parking and open-space requirements for new developments in the area generally bordered by Fifth and Third avenues and Torres and Mission streets.

The specific plan is not expected to be formally adopted by the council until October at the earliest.

The planners are in an awkward position because two condominium projects in various states of approval do not meet the building criteria established in the draft specific plan.

But both projects have been before the city for more than a year and both are in various stages of approval.

The planning commission had approved a use permit to Earl Walls for a seven-unit condominium project on the west side of Junipero Avenue between Fifth and Fourth avenues.

But Walls experienced delays in ground breaking and his use permit expired after one year. Meanwhile, the city had begun to prepare the new specific plan.

Adjacent to Walls's 5,000 sq. ft. property is the 7,500 sq. ft. site of Joe McEldowney's proposed five-unit condominium project. It took McEldowney more than a year before he could obtain a use permit, which was granted only after he agreed to eliminate two units and provide 10 underground parking spaces.

McEldowney was granted tentative tract approval for his project on the condition that the design meet the criteria to be established by the new R-4 draft specific plan.

But McEldowney's project and the one proposed by Walls do not meet the requirements proposed in the draft specific plan, according to Carmel Planner Brian Roseth.

If the specific plan is adopted, the proposed density, setback and height requirements "would make their projects impossible to build," Roseth said.

Walls's project has the biggest hurdle to overcome. Under the draft specific plan guidelines, his seven-condominium project would have to be cut to four units.

The draft specific plan would require McEldowney to eliminate one of his five condominiums.

ROSETH SAID the city is in a precarious position because officials want to enforce the conditions of the draft specific plan, but also be fair to McEldowney and Walls who have "gone through the lengthy review process in good faith."

"When apprised of the situation, the recommendation of the committee is that the situation is inequitable for those two properties," Roseth said.

Two committees actually reviewed the issue. One is the land use committee made up of John Logan, Art Mertens and Gene Hammond. Planning and Conservation Committee members Sandy Swain and Gene Cava also believe there should be a compromise, Roseth said.

The compromise to be discussed next week is for the city to rezone the two parcels from R-4 to service-commercial (SC), he said.

The rezoning would be a simple task because the SC district abuts the McEldowney property which in turn is adjacent to Walls's site. It would be a matter of

THIS VACANT lot on Junipero Avenue between Fifth and Fourth avenues someday is to be developed as condominiums by Earl Walls. However, Walls and the developer of an adjacent project have run into problems because a draft specific plan requires less density and height, and more setbacks. Walls's project already was approved once, but his use permit since has expired. The planning commission will look at a possible compromise Aug. 14. (Michael Gardner photo.)

redrawing the SC district lines two parcels to the north.

McEldowney's project meets all requirements set forth in the building codes for the service-commercial zone, Roseth said.

But Walls still would have to trim his project by one unit to meet the density requirements in the SC district, he said.

In return for the rezoning, the city will ask that the designs of the two projects "harmonize" with one another, he said.

For example, staff wants to compare the two designs to ensure that there are no major problems, such as a window of one condominium that faces the stark blank wall of the adjacent project.

Staff still has that review underway and just how many changes to the designs are needed will not be detailed until the Aug. 14 session.

Planning Director Diane White is unsure whether the requirement that the projects "harmonize" will pose problems for the developers.

"It could be a real big problem, and then again it could be nothing," she said.

Spanish Bay project delayed more scheduled to have his responses to comments on the EIR ready until Aug. 13. Groves indicated he could have the document completed by Aug. 6, but that still would not have provided staff with ample time to get ready for the Aug. 14 meeting.

In addition, several Pacific Grove and Pebble Beach residents asked that the hearing be scheduled for Aug. 28.

MOST OF them indicated it would be too difficult to attend an Aug. 14 session and then get to Eureka in time for the Aug. 15 Coastal Commission meeting to review the wastewater treatment plant.

Residents of the area also said they oppose the conveyor belt because of possible noise and safety problems.

Commissioners agreed to the delay and scheduled further review for 7 p.m., Aug. 28 in the county courthouse in Salinas.

Most of those who spoke are residents of the Del Monte Park neighborhood of Pacific Grove. They plan to be out in full force in Eureka to protest the wastewater treatment facility proposed by the Pebble Beach Community Services District.

They claim the plant will create odors and lower property values. They also believe that a larger plant proposed by the Carmel Sanitary District in Carmel would better serve the entire area.

Pebble Beach Community Services District proposes to build a $9 to $11 million facility that will provide about 600,000 gallons of reclaimed water daily to irrigate golf courses in Del Monte Forest.

The Coastal Commission will listen to public testimony Aug. 15; however, the application is to be continued until the Sept. 25-27 hearings in San Francisco, according to Ed Brown, director of the Coastal Commission office in Santa Cruz.

"We encourage people who cannot make it to Eureka to submit written comments," Brown said. "Because the commission will only meet once a month after August, there will be limited time at the San Francisco hearing for additional testimony."

A lawsuit still is pending that seeks to force a new environmental review of the plant. Judge O'Farrell listened to arguments Aug. 13 and said he intends to make a decision later this month.

Seeking more environmental analysis plus a study on whether a larger plant in Carmel is a better alternative are plaintiffs City of Carmel, Carmel Sanitary District and the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District.

School board to vote on student bus fees

By MICHAEL GARDNER

CONTINUANCE OF the $50 per year fee for home-to-school transportation is expected to be the only major action item before the Carmel Unified School District Board of Education Thursday, Aug. 8.

The session, which best could be described as a "welcome to the world of school finance" for the newest trustees, will begin at 7 p.m. in the Carmel Middle School library, south side of Carmel Valley Road about one mile east of Highway 1.

The three new trustees — Pat Herro, Hilton Bialek and Claudia Daniels — will be introduced to the approximately $7.2 million 1985-86 budget, which was adopted by the board before the three were elected in the July 23 recall vote.

'It's pretty difficult to say a school should tolerate smoking. I think we're sending out the wrong message,' said Feldeisen, an occasional smoker.

Of the new board members, only Bialek has school budget experience, having served on the board from 1963-1971.

Supt. Robert Infelise and Asst. Supt. Vance Baldwin are expected to present the review, which will include possible action to continue the transportation fee.

Parents are charged a $50 fee for their first two children, the third child is half price and after that there is no assessment. The fee raised about $38,000 in 1984-85.

The fee was ordered last year because costs ($398,000) exceeded state transportation income ($314,000).

The board discussed the fee at its July 30 session, but postponed action because of concerns that parents had not received adequate notice.

Trustees last year were assailed by several parents because the fee was adopted during the summer of 1984 and without, they say, enough notice of the impending discussion.

"It was a hot issue," said Trustee Doyle Clayton, who was selected as board president July 30.

The study session will provide an update on the bleak budget outlook for the district.

The tentative budget lists about $160,000 as an "ending balance" that can be distributed for reserves and staff pay raises.

If the board does not make other cuts, that $160,000 would provide about a 3 percent across-the-board pay raise for the entire staff, or a 1 percent salary hike and about $100,000 reserves.

Trustees generally have acknowledged they would like automatically to budget staff pay raises, but Infelise said he does not plan to include any potential salary hikes at this time.

The budget study session also will be the first for Baldwin, the ex-St. Helena, Napa Valley, superintendent just hired by the board to replace Business Manager Ed Miyasaki.

ALSO AT that July 30 session the board received a pair of recommendations from

A SCHOOL bus crossed Highway 1 taking Carmel High School students home in the waning days of the spring semester. Trustees Aug. 8 are to discuss continuance of the busing fee. Last week trustees discussed, but did not vote on a plan to charge $10 per parking space on the high school campus. (Michael Gardner photo.)

new Carmel High School Principal Joe Feldeisen.

Feldeisen reported that a special committee of teachers and students has recommended that the smoking area be closed and all student smoking be banned from campus.

The board withheld action on the plan until after a school survey of all the students is conducted during the first week of classes in early September.

In addition, the Associated Student Body has recommended that the high school charge a $10 per year parking fee because of the parking problems on campus, Feldeisen said.

Under that plan, seniors will be given first priority to buy designated spaces, which will be marked so that other cars will be towed if illegally parked. The $10 fee would be used to finance student activities.

Faculty and staff parking would remain free, under the plan.

The board asked for more details of the proposal to be presented at a subsequent, still-unscheduled session.

The two proposals generated a lot of discussion by the board, by Feldeisen and from student body officers in the audience.

For a few years the high school had a smoking area between the main campus and gym. Last year new rules were adopted that prohibited freshmen from the area and also required parental permission to smoke. About 65 students had written permission.

The concept was to keep the smoking out of the restrooms and other more secluded areas of campus. Students were warned last year that if the privilege was abused the smoking area could be eliminated.

That is apparently what happened. Because of enforcement and litter problems, a special committee of staff, students and a parent recommended that the smoking area be closed.

In addition, the faculty is unanimously opposed to the smoking area, Feldeisen told the board.

Feldeisen said schools that teach the health hazards of smoking should not condone the practice by establishing a smoking area.

"It's pretty difficult to say a school should tolerate smoking. I think we're sending out the wrong message," said Feldeisen, an occasional smoker.

He also noted that the word among students was that "we had some kids who were loading their cigarettes with something other than tobacco," an obvious reference to marijuana.

Feldeisen added that if the no smoking plan is adopted by the board in September then the faculty "has promised to help police the bathrooms."

GIL CHAMPION, incoming senior class president, adamantly supported elimination of the smoking area.

"There should not be any smoking on the campus. We're trying to promote good health and involvement on campus. You can't do that by hanging out in the smoking area," he said.

Champion said the law prohibits smoking by minors, so the school should enforce that law.

ASB president Steve Roberts added that the smoking area is a blight on the campus. "It really scars the campus. It's just a pit. It's disgusting," Roberts said of the smoking area.

Board President Doyle Clayton praised teachers for their offer voluntarily to help police the restrooms if the smoking area is eliminated.

The board seemed supportive of the plan, but agreed it would be a good idea to have an advisory vote of the students. If a large number of students oppose smoking, and teachers help, then enforcement problems may be kept at a minimum, trustees noted.

"It's one thing to make the rules. It's a second thing to enforce them," Clayton said.

Clayton also added a note of humor when he reminded that this appears to be a rare case of students agreeing with the board and staff.

"I think it's one of the first times I've heard of the students supporting something the adults want to do," he said.

In a separate matter, Feldeisen explained the plan to charge $10 per parking space on campus.

Under the plan, faculty members will park by the library and music buildings. The front spaces will be numbered and sold. There are about 150 spaces available on campus.

MODELING AGENCY

Attention All Elizabeth Models!...

Elizabeth Modeling Agency now boasts a head book of 85 models, actors, and actresses. As the foundation of this exciting new agency is laid, we are placing many of our models in jobs throughout the community. We have recently received word that our agency will be used to fill the needs of a major film company out of southern California when they are filming locally. We feel it is vital that we let you know we are anticipating a varied and busy schedule. We have booked some of you into local commercials, print jobs, and fashion shows, and our formal promotion plan went into action only last week. This tells us that there is a definite need for a full service agency, and compels us to encourage you to participate in what the agency offers. Thus the subject of this letter:

In an effort to further the professionalism of the Elizabeth Model, the Elizabeth Modeling Agency will be giving a seminar EXCLUSIVE to our models. The seminar will be on Sunday, August 18, 1985 at the Monterey Sheraton, for a fee of $50.00. Although it is not imperative that you attend, we feel strongly that it will be a positive, productive step in your career.

The following four main speakers are individuals who use models, actors, and actresses in their day-to-day businesses:

GERRY VERGA — Retailer and owner of "Gerry's Designer Clothing," located on Cannery Row in Monterey.

JAMES PINCKNEY — Well known fashion photographer.

TOM SCOGGINS — "The Originators" — Casting director for local commercials.

JUDITH BOULAY — "Central Coast Productions" — Casting director for network productions filmed locally.

Each speaker will give a talk on what they expect of you when you go "on-call" to them. This is also an opportunity for you to introduce yourself to these very influential and talented people in our industry, and make a lasting impression!

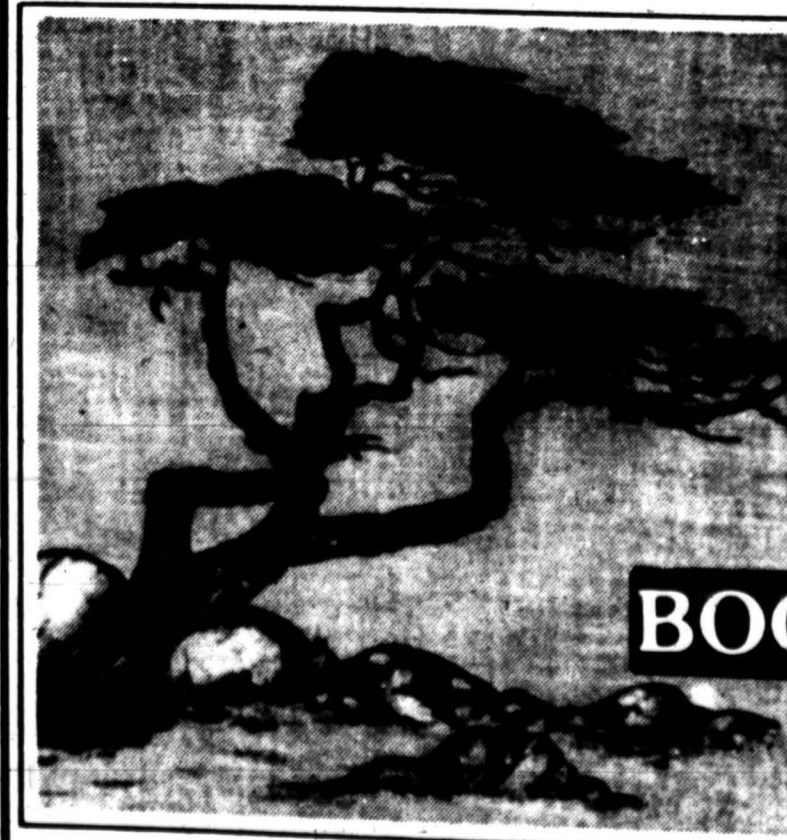

There will be a talk given by a professional model, Judythe Bartholomew (Miss World Model 1980), on the basics for success in modeling. Eve Alexandria Rey (health and beauty expert to celebrities, such as Dyan Cannon) will talk on beauty and nutrition for the male and female model.

We at the Elizabeth Modeling Agency want to present the best product possible to this community through our agency, and we believe this seminar is one step in the right direction. There are only 75 seats available, so it is imperative that you register as soon as possible. Send your registration check immediately to:

New school trustees to get briefed on public finance

"No matter what we do we don't have adequate parking," he said.

The principal said that students will have to prove they have a car and license before a sticker can be bought.

"They have to have a license and they have to have an automobile so a senior can't go and buy a parking lot sticker (for $10) and sell it to some sophomore for $20," he said.

There were some questions about the program that Infelise is to report on later.

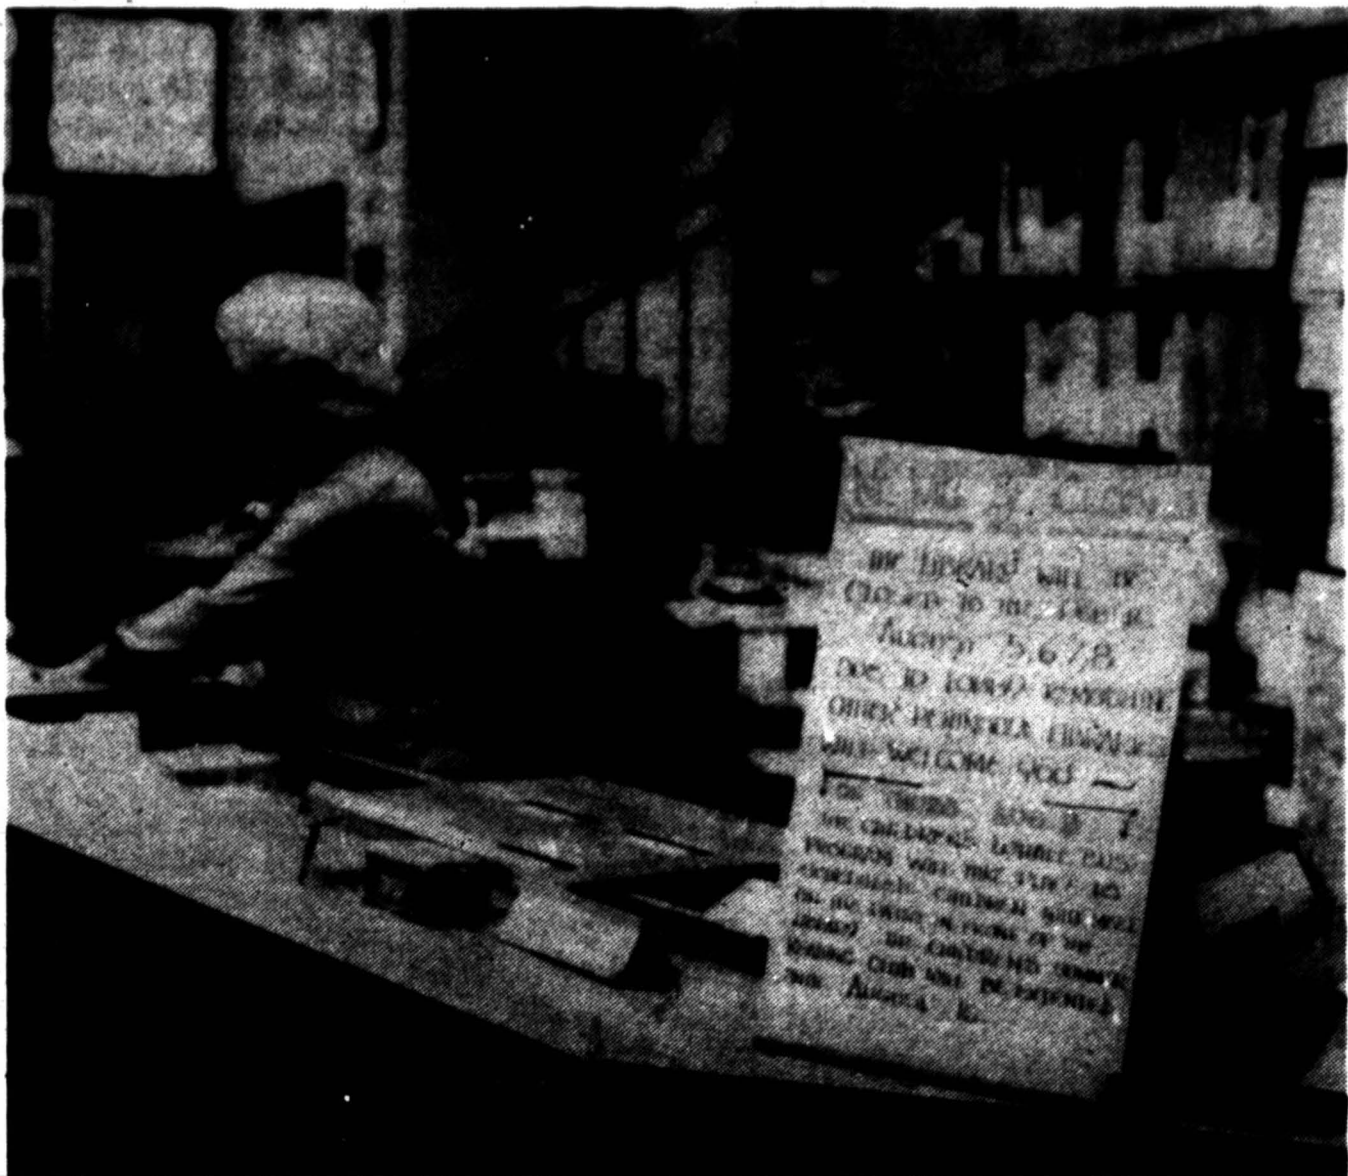

One is the question of requiring students to show proof of insurance.

Another is the question of the priority system. Teacher Imogene Speiser suggested students who have jobs should be given the first priority to buy the parking stickers.

Fred Herro, husband of trustee Pat Herro, said: "Why not base it on grades as opposed to money, or do it by lottery?"

Fred Herro also questioned whether the school would be guilty of "discrimination of income" if a student is denied a sticker because he cannot afford the $10.

Trustees suggested that Infelise and Feldeisen look into the questions raised and report back at a later meeting.

HARRISON MEMORIAL Library will reopen tomorrow, Aug. 9, with a new look. The library will be closed until Friday to allow workers to remodel the lobby. Patrons will see a major change in the lobby where the circulation desk (above) will be relocated to add more room for the new arrivals section. In addition, computer rooms will be added downstairs and a theft detection device installed. The children's whale bus program will be offered as scheduled, at 2 p.m. Aug. 8 at the library patio. Clarification

VOTERS WHO reside within the Carmel Valley Fire Protection District boundaries have until Aug. 20 to return their mail ballots on whether property owners should be assessed $23 per parcel to help fund the community center.

In the Aug. 1 edition, the Carmel Pine Cone/Carmel Valley Outlook incorrectly reported the assessment would be $45.

The parcel tax will be used to form a Parks and Recreation District. Voters are also asked to elect a board of directors should the Parks and Recreation District be formed.

Seven residents seek five positions on the board. The candidates are: Ron Scholl, Debbie Saxton, Chuck Bosso, Chuck McKay, Kate Rosenthal, Randy Randazzo and Graham Matthews.

VENTANA REPORT BY GLEN STEWART

How the forest fire affected Big Sur area

WILDFIRES have recently blackened several parts of California during what has been described as the worst fire season in 30 years.

I watched the Rat Creek fire gnaw its way across several thousand acres of central coast wilderness on its way to our Ventana Wilderness Sanctuary boundary. It was a humbling experience.

The sanctuary is located in Anderson Canyon some 26 miles down the Coast Ridge Road from the Ventana Restaurant and Inn in Big Sur. Heavy smoke began to appear in the canyon a little less than a day after the fire began. An inversion layer forced the smoke to creep along the beach making it impossible to determine the origin of the fire. Since I had just initiated a radio telemetry research project with the release of two young prairie falcons, the smoke caused me some concern.

I took the Jeep up to the ridge and learned from the CB traffic and my own observations that the so-called Rat Creek fire was well underway. It was a deeply disappointing realization, but not one that evoked any frantic sense of emergency or fear.

It was quiet and sunny on the ridge where I sat watching the billowing smoke several canyons to the south. The haze was becoming denser along the otherwise clear and sparkling coastline. In spite of the breeze that blew out of the north, the fire was moving in a northerly direction.

The CB reported that most of the fire retardant bombers had been diverted to a fire threatening San Luis Obispo and that most of the available firefighters were committed there or to an arson fire near Los Gatos. Help was not on the way.

Fire is a natural part of the coastal ecosystem that is generally, and in the long run, beneficial to wildlife habitat. It consumes dead and down trees, brush and grasses when it burns through an area. Shrubs and grasses regenerate vigorously in the replenished soil with the first rain after the fire. True, wildlife populations are diminished, but it is generally the young and weak that are culled out leaving breeding populations intact.

My mind ticked off the advantages of fire as I searched the distant ridge with binoculars for flames and listened to the CB for updates. Still, I had to concede that the fire had the potential to really muck things up by burning up our sanctuary, the newly released falcons, and exposing the primitive Coast Ridge Road to damage from mudslides that would ultimately bar our access.

The disadvantages weighed heavily since a dedicated crew of volunteers had constructed the 40-foot release tower for the falcons during five Saturdays this spring. The fire jeopardized that labor of love, the falcons that stood atop it, and the research that would flow from their release.

Tiny transmitters were mounted on the birds like miniature backpacks. The radios would allow us to follow the falcons as they dispersed and gather new information on their behavior thanks to advances in wildlife radio-telemetry monitoring technology.

THE FIRE continued its relentless march for two days. Gary Paddock attempted to cut a fire line down the south ridge of Anderson Canyon, but soon found that he arrived too late and with too few reinforcements.

Anderson Canyon was destined to burn. We evacuated our gear and optimistically left several days' supply of food for the young falcons in hopes that the fire would do little damage and allow us to continue our research. The fire appeared on our ridge as the sun set and we departed in a somber mood.

A day and a half later the country around Anderson Peak was transformed into a different place. Smoke darkened the sky as hundreds of yellow-shirted firefighters moved about in an extremely organized — almost militaristic — fashion to bring the still raging fire under control.

Flare guns were used to backfire along the Coast Ridge Road. Fire-retardant bombers followed small lead planes down the ridge to come in low and slow before unleashing their load along the fire line. There were no volunteer fire fighters here.

These folks were well-trained and equipped for their jobs. They each carried emergency gear that included among other things, a "fire shelter," which most of us refer to as a space blanket. Theoretically, if the fire turns and eliminates all escape routes suddenly, a person can huddle under the blanket whose reflective surface will protect him from the intense heat while the fire passes overhead.

The activity and the still-burning fire prevented my access to the sanctuary for two more days. By then I found sooty and exhausted firefighters collected in small groups awaiting transport. Most slept as I passed slowly in the Jeep, but an occasional crewman would roll over and open one eye for a brief moment. The place looked like a war zone.

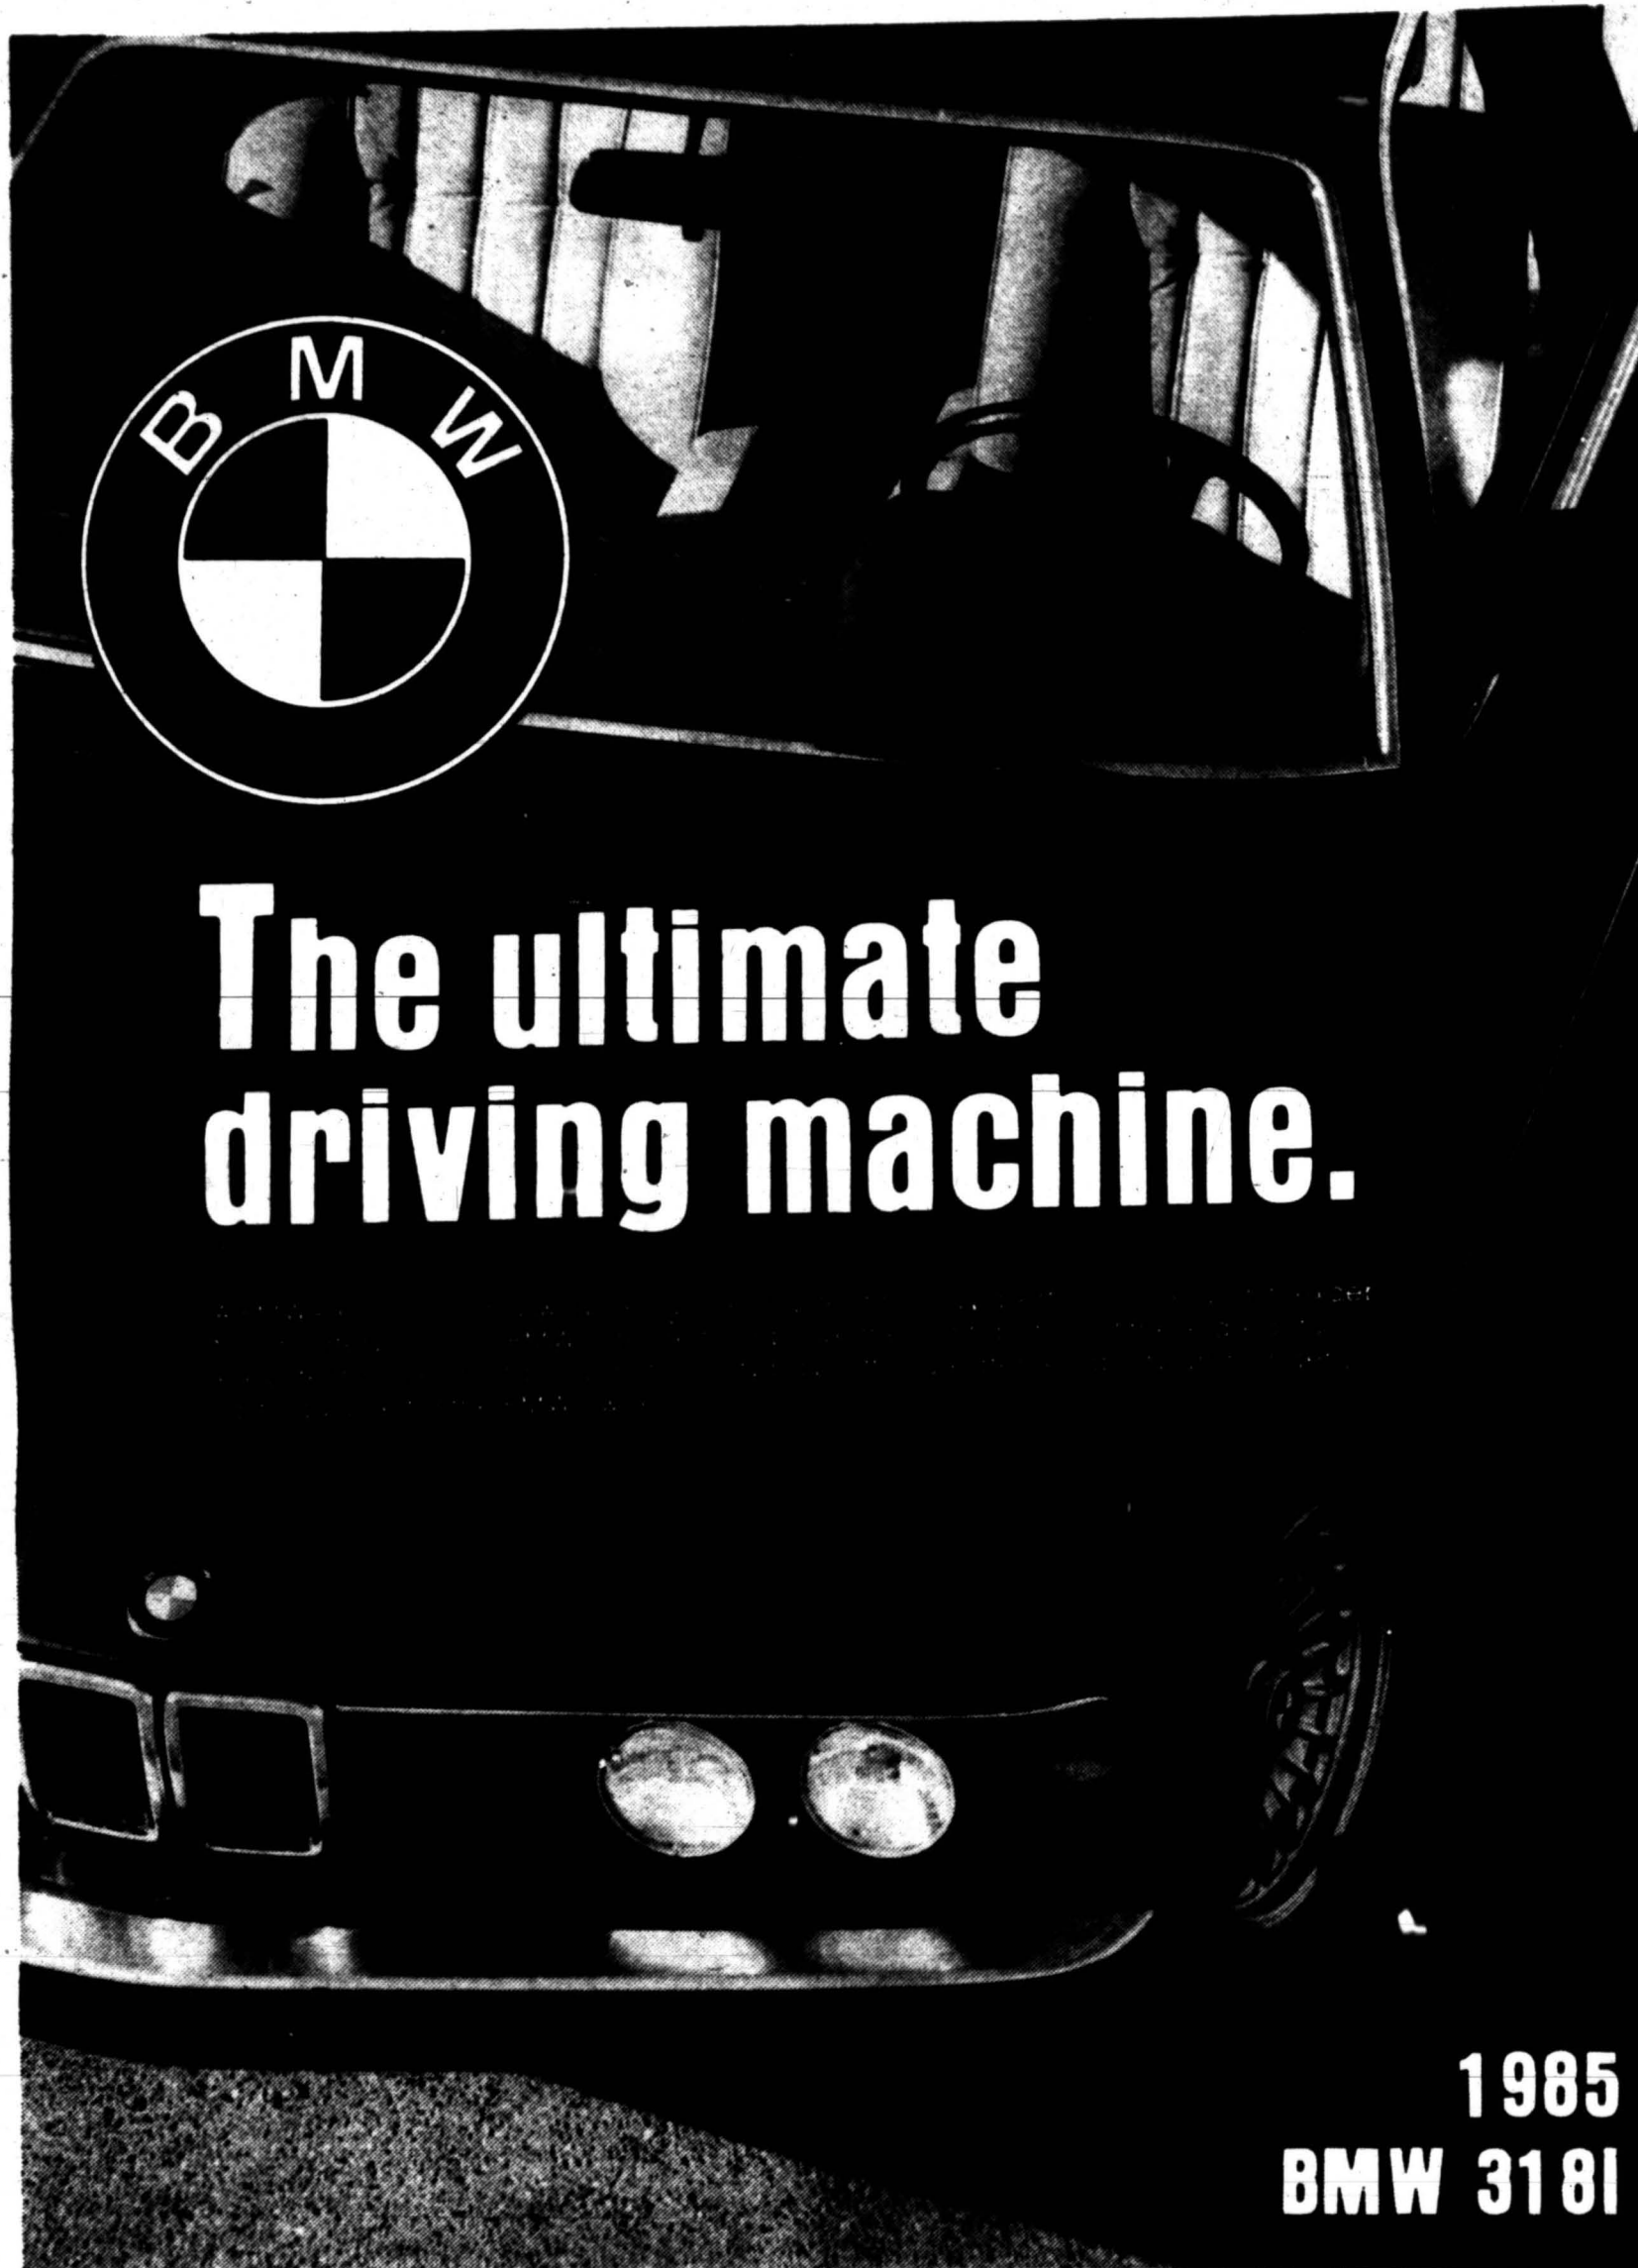

In Anderson Canyon, I found the chaparral covered slopes completely burned, while most of the redwood, pine, oak and bay trees survived intact. The wooden release tower was not even charred and the surviving male falcon continued to use the structure.

The fire apparently had swept through rapidly but with diminished impact as it destroyed primarily brush, grasses and deadfall. The ash was ankle deep everywhere but there was abundant evidence that the fire had done a limited amount of damage.

Ferns still covered the slope near a spring that I hiked past, indicating that the fire had entirely avoided grottos of lush vegetation in the drainages. In spite of the ash and smoldering stumps, I saw five deer, a blue-belly lizard, some gnatcatchers, the omnipresent Stellar's jay, quail (the young ones I'd seen before the fire were conspicuously absent), band-tail pigeons, and a red-tailed hawk. So, life goes after the fire.

Fire is a natural part of the central coast ecosystem. It is difficult for us to accept. That is due in part to the inconvenience that it causes us humans in terms of the loss of structures and roads (from subsequent mudslides), and partially to the fact that we tend to view such events in the very short term.

Catastrophes such as forest fires would probably be easier to accept if we could view them as part of a natural cycle. The human race is, however, so far removed from that cycle in the static and insulated lives we've created for ourselves that we cannot see any value in the cyclic changes that occur regularly in nature. History has shown that we prefer to control nature even though it often becomes an ongoing battle.

Barracudas complete novice finals

THE SEASIDE team won the annual inter-club finals of the novice Barracuda Aquatics meet at four different pools on the Monterey Peninsula Aug. 3. Seaside finished first with 234 points followed by Carmel Valley with 227 points, Pacific Grove with 221 points and Carmel scored 164 points. The meet was conducted at pools in Seaside, Pacific Grove, Carmel Valley and Carmel. Coaches were Marty Beeck, Dale Johnson, Amy Buckner, Matt Bell and Diana Whitesides. First place winners were: Tyson Altenberg, David Dunlap, Erica Wortherty, Chris Belt, Nicole Glanville, Juleen Vegas, Daniel Kaehler, David Moore, Ruby Rustan, Chaz Koontz, Abby Bailey, Adam Rustan, Joanne Goode, Jacqueline Goode, Jonathon Cook, Micah Lande, Michael Singletary, Janell Petalver and Jason Lande. The Barracudas will compete in the Coast Valley Athletics League finals Aug. 9-11 at the Soquel High School pool in Soquel. Above, Diana Whitesides, head coach of the novices, lined up the swimmers for the next event at the novice finals Aug. 3.

NOVICE NICOLE Glanville of Carmel Valley awaited her turn during the Barracuda Aquatics novice finals Aug. 3.

ARLYN PETALVER of Carmel shivered as she awaited her event at the Barracudas novice aquatics final meet Aug. 3.

My wife disappeared for a few days, then called from San Diego and claimed she didn't remember how she got there! The last thing she remembered was having a drink with a friend in our kitchen. Her drinking has been a problem for some time now. Can this happen?

A.

From your description of what happened, it sounds as if your wife is having blackouts. (A blackout is not to be confused with passing out, which is unconsciousness.) In a blackout the person walks and talks, apparently normally, but has no recollection of it afterwards. It is a form of amnesia and is one of the most terrifying things that happen to alcoholics. Blackouts are a definite symptom of alcoholism. Seek professional help for your wife now!

Sophia Center works for peace

Sophia Center newsletter

To SISTER Marilyn Smith and her inter-faith Sophia Center, the only way to achieve true peace in the world is through social justice.

The Sophia Center is a fledgling non-profit, peace-oriented organization on the Monterey Peninsula that has put together a string of informational sessions on the sanctuary movement, how to recreate hope for peace and the next steps toward peace.

'We work toward peace by working toward social justice,' said volunteer coordinator Sister Marilyn.

The next session is a Festival of Peace from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 11 in the music auditorium at Monterey Peninsula College.

Keynote speaker at the festival will be psychologist and author Gerald Jampolsky, who will lecture on "Children as Teachers of Peace."

The film Faith, War and Peace in the Nuclear Age, which encompasses the relationship between the arms race and the numerous issues of social justice, hunger and American involvement in Central America, also will be shown.

Inspirational music will be offered by Aileen Vance, a Santa Cruz folk singer; Buddy Comfort, a San Francisco-area balladeer; and a gospel choir from Our Lady of Lourdes, Hunter's Point, San Francisco.

The Sophia Center actually does not have a center. Instead the five member board — Sister Marilyn, Linda Smith, and Mary Cea, all of Carmel; and Salinas residents Jim Keilman and Sister Yvonne Bondi — meet in private homes.

The board prefers to utilize its limited funds raised through contributions mostly for a newsletter, the peace workshops, and contributions to the sanctuary movement, which helps groups provide help to political refugees who are in this country illegally.

'WE WORK toward peace by working toward social justice," is how volunteer coordinator Sister Marilyn describes the activities of the Sophia Center.

"In the history of humanity, peace has meant the cessation of hostilities. To be able to truly move in the direction of expressing peace, we have to look at those things that keep disrupting peace," said Sister Marilyn, who is with the Sisters of Notre Dame at the House of Prayer near the Carmelite Monastery.

The Sisters of Notre Dame, founded in the aftermath of the French Revolution, is an "active" province of the Roman Catholic Church as compared to the nuns who are cloistered in the monastery.

Sister Marilyn, as part of her ministry, worked with different peace organizations when several representatives began to discuss the idea for a new group.

"In working with people in this capacity I became aware of the need to have a visible center that would be specifically for the purpose of making the larger population aware

SISTER Marilyn Smith, one of the Sisters of Notre Dame at the House of Prayer near Carmelite Monastery, is coordinator of the Sophia Center, a non-profit organization dedicated to peace and social justice. not an especially easy goal to attain in view of the history of mankind.

But to envision that goal is better than not to do anything at all, she added.

"The direction we're moving in now is suicidal," Sister Marilyn said.

WHEN WE talk about what's realistic and what's not realistic, what we really need to talk about is, whose reality.

"If you decide in reality that the status quo is not acceptable then what I have just talked about (peace through social justice) is realistic," she said.

Although she says "I cannot pass judgment," Sister Marilyn does have concerns about the various religious organizations who use God as a shield in their demands to support more weapons of war.

"As soon as a person who identifies with religion becomes self-righteous that's a valid time for a red flag...for the general population to seriously question any religious statements they make," Sister Marilyn said.

She said she is "ill at ease" with certain religious organizations that "call on God when calling for more nuclear weapons and aid to the Contras (the American-backed rebels in Nicaragua.)"

"For us who feel ill at ease with that we look on the God of scripture differently. We see a God more involved with the poor, the excluded, the hungry. So as we live out our relationship with God it is important for us to help those people," Sister Marilyn said.

Sister Marilyn is interested in an idea advanced by Carmel Mayor Charlotte Townsend, who now is in Japan attending a peace conference marking the 40th anniversary of the dropping of the atomic bomb on Hiroshima and Nagasaki.

The mayor proposed the idea of a central umbrella organization to oversee and direct the activities of the numerous peace-oriented groups. Sister Marilyn is uncertain whether the establishment of a new organization is necessary, but she certainly agrees with the concept of more coordination and communication between the groups.

Although the Sophia Center is not as political as some peace organizations, Sister Marilyn thinks that better communication by the leaderships in the movement "would have a tremendous amount of impact if they could see that each other's efforts reinforce the other."

The Sophia Center does try to cooperate with other groups. For example, its bi-monthly newsletter lists major activities by the New Forum.

After the Festival of Peace the board of the Sophia Center will analyze the accomplishments of the series of informational sessions and choose future programs, Sister Marilyn said.

One goal is to sponsor a program dedicated to women in the peace process, she said.

Tickets for the Festival of Peace are a $10 donation. For more information on the Sophia Center, call 624-6003 or 625-1261.

Daniels prepares to run for office again

CLAUDIA DANIELS has just been sworn in on the Carmel Unified School District Board of Education and now it's time to run again.

The filing period for candidates who will seek election to the school board in November is Friday, Aug. 9.

Candidates may file their papers with the district office in Carmel Valley or at the county elections department in Salinas. Candidates must be residents of the Carmel Unified School District.

Daniels, who was elected in the July 23 recall balloting, has indicated she will run again in November. She replaced James Yates, whose term expires in November.

Doyle Clayton, the new board president, said he too will seek re-election.

Voters have until Oct. 5 to register. Sample ballots are to be mailed by Oct. 18 and Oct. 29 is the final day to request an absentee ballot.

Those elected Nov. 5 will assume office Nov. 29.

Restaurateur Hakim worked hard for success

By AL EISNER

THE STORY of the success of Carmel restaurateur Jack Hakim is a familiar one. Born in a foreign country, he had to learn the language of his adopted country to make his way.

He also learned his trade the hard way. He started at the bottom and held as many as three jobs at one time while he attended college here.

Today, he owns two restaurants and several pieces of valuable commercial property in downtown Carmel, and is poised to create another commercial complex near Cannery Row.

Despite his success, Hakim is still starry-eyed about America, and grateful for the opportunities it has given him. "This country always has been the land of opportunity, and it still is," Hakim said. He added that you "have to have goals and a vision of the future and be willing to work hard."

Sound a little old-fashioned? Maybe even a little dated? Perhaps. But Hakim has found a way to make that philosophy work for him successfully in the go-go atmosphere of California.

'The United States is the last place in the world with freedom of opportunity. A person can also express himself freely. I can't think of any other place I'd want to live.'

Born in Persia in 1943, Hakim is the oldest of six children. When he turned 18, he came to the United States by himself. After he studied English at New York University for the summer, he decided he wanted to become a student at a typically American college "to improve his language and to learn to be an American." He chose Shasta College in Redding, Calif.

While he earned his A.A. degree at Shasta, he worked as a custodian and in the school cafeteria as a dishwasher and kitchen helper. He enrolled at Chico State University and labored at two jobs to earn his tuition. During the summer he worked at a canning factory from 6 a.m. to 3 p.m. and in a pizza restaurant from 4 p.m. to midnight as busboy, waiter and cook.

How did he discover the Monterey Peninsula? After graduation, he came to San Jose to work. Like many other South Bay residents, he used to spend weekends in Santa Cruz. "I got lost one weekend when I took Highway 1 instead of Highway 17, and found myself smack in the middle of Monterey," he said. At the Poppy Restaurant on Alvarado Street Hakim met a group of Persians who showed him the town. "I liked it and moved here even though I didn't have a job," he recalls.

He got his start in the restaurant business here in 1965 when a friend of his, who was working as a waiter at Scandia Restaurant in Carmel, asked if Jack would be interested in a job as a waiter. He took the job, but his ambition was unrequited.

"I wanted to have my own business," Jack said. "So I opened the Orange Julius in Del Monte Center." He worked at his new business during daytime hours and on his nights off from Scandia.

With seemingly limitless energy, he also worked part-time on weekends as a waiter at the Beach Club in Pebble Beach, and also was a waiter on the original staff of the Sardine Factory when it opened on Cannery Row in 1968.

A year later, he heard that the late Arne Kippnes, owner of the Scandia, was interested in selling, and Hakim became the new owner of the Scandia. When he took it over, the restaurant featured mostly Scandinavian specialties and grossed $280,000 a year. Jack brightened up the decor, added some fish, seafood, veal and lamb items, and built the volume to almost $1 million a year.

IN 1965, Jack and a partner opened the Harbinger Restaurant in Carmel Plaza. Jack said he plans to remodel the Harbinger later this year using the services of restaurant designer Charles Gruwell.

Jack developed a very good relationship with Jimmy Doud, owner of the property where the Scandia stands on the south side of Ocean, across from the Pine Inn. He frequently asked Doud, who retired to Hawaii, if he would be willing to sell the property.

His persistence paid off. In March of 1984, Doud, a member of the pioneer Carmel family, softened, and finally said "maybe." Hakim jumped on the next plane to the Islands, and made a deal with Doud. Shortly thereafter, Doud agreed to sell Hakim two other pieces of commercial property in downtown Carmel.

In 1977, Hakim bought some commercial property on Wave Street above Cannery Row to fulfill his long-time dream of opening another restaurant and motel. He is scheduled to present his plans for Steinbeck Court, a mixed-use project including commercial, retail and residential uses, to the Monterey Planning Commission in August. He is also a partner in a proposed new shopping center in Santa Monica.

Hakim, who lives in Carmel Knolls with his two daughters Lisa, 18, and Jennifer, 16, has trimmed 40 pounds from his frame in the last year. After a visit to the Pritikin Longevity Center in Los Angeles, he altered his eating habits and runs five miles, six days a week — usually on the nearby Rancho Canada Golf Course.

He is quick to credit others for his success. "I learned from Ted Balistreri (owner of the Sardine Factory and other restaurants) that you have to be involved in your business to be successful. Tom Oliver (former manager of the Beach and Tennis Club and now president of the Pebble Beach Co.) taught me the importance of careful attention to detail," he said. From Arne Kippnes, Hakim added: "I learned how to cook from scratch, and how to run a profitable restaurant."

The sky's the limit for this young man, who takes none of his success for granted. "The United States is the last place in the world with freedom of opportunity. A person can also express himself freely. I can't think of any other place I'd want to live."

RESTAURATEUR Jack Hakim has worked hard for his success in this country since he

TWENTY PERCENT TOPINION

BY DAVID MARADEI
CARMEL CITY COUNCILMAN

Civil responsibility and 'dog bleep'

DURING the past three years I've served on the Carmel City Council probably no issue has had the ability to excite the residents of our village more than the issue of "dogs."

Whether it is dogs on the beach, or dogs on a leash, or dogs running free, we are always assured of a full council chamber with emotions at a fever pitch when it comes to decisions about mankind's best friend.

Today I am not going to talk about dogs, but I am going to talk about the responsibility that I believe dog owners must accept when they assume the care of a family pet.

You must clean up after your dog in any public area. That responsibility relates to a greater issue, that of being a good neighbor and a good citizen by cleaning up after your dog. I receive many citizen complaints on the failure (and sometimes the refusal) of dog owners to pick up waste deposited by their dogs.

Title Six of our municipal code talks about animals and nuisances. For the purpose of that section "nuisance" means defecation and urination. It is unlawful for any person to knowingly, or carelessly or negligently, permit any dog or other animal to commit any nuisance upon any sidewalk or any public street. Basically, that is the language of our law.

In Section C of the nuisance subtitle is this requirement: "Any person walking or otherwise out with a dog or other animal which he owns or over which he has charge, custody or control shall carry with him all materials and implements necessary to pick up and carry away the feces of such dog or other animal."

That section of our code defines what the law says you must do as a dog owner. Whether on the beach or a street or a park, it is your responsibility to clean up the "dog bleep" your pet leaves behind.

THERE ARE good reasons for getting into that practice. It demonstrates that you love and care for your community. It means that you accept the responsibility you have as both a citizen and a neighbor to assure our laws are respected and upheld.

You become a friend to the spirit of cooperation within the village, which means that you will do your part, no matter how distasteful or unpleasant, in keeping the city clean. You will gain the respect and the thanks of many of your fellow citizens by taking care of this necessary duty.

There are other good reasons to follow the spirit of the nuisance ordinance. A substantial reason is that we should not waste the time of our public safety officers by making them write citations for violations of Title Six. They have better things to do in effecting public safety than to chase negligent dog owners.

Next — and this is the real point I would like to make on this subject — let us avoid the "doublethink" situation created when you fail to pick up after your pet. As an owner you cannot have what author Phillip Slater calls the "toilet mentality" on this issue.

Just because you flush the waste away and your bathroom bowl is clean, that does not mean that the waste is gone. Someone has to deal with the waste. It is still there, it is just not in your house. The same thing applies to droppings. Someone has to clean it up. Who do you think it should be?

If you have a friend or neighbor who is breaking this village law maybe you could send them a copy of this article. If everyone cooperates, it will raise the quality of our lives a little bit and it will demonstrate that we can address the small annoying issues that exist within our city using intelligent and effective methods. Then we don't require over-regulatory laws when dealing with what should be a simple matter of community values.

KIDS' BEAT

BY CAROLE COLTER

Summer activities continue

KARATE continues at the Carmel Youth Center with Pete Grissim of Carmel as instructor. Every Monday, Wednesday and Friday from 3:30 p.m. to 4:30 p.m. his students practice the disciplined moves of this popular martial art.

Pete obtained his black belt two years ago at the Peninsula Karate Studio in Pacific Grove, training under three-time international karate champion Bob Burbidge. Now, in addition to teaching at the Carmel Youth Center, he works as a part-time instructor for Mike Bissell, who owns the studio. We highly encourage anyone interested in taking this class to drop in and try it out. Since the class is free for the rest of the summer, you can hardly lose!

Karate, of course, isn't the only thing we do at the Youth Center. Movie buffs can enjoy watching their favorite stars blaze across our giant video screen from 7 p.m. to 11 p.m. every Friday. There are several different movies to choose from so you seldom have to worry about getting stuck with repeats.

Bowling is still a favorite every Friday afternoon. Our van leaves the center at 12:15 p.m. and returns at 3 p.m. A $3 fee includes skates, transportation and three games.

It is not uncommon for us to stage an impromptu pool or ping-pong tournament, or take off to Carmel High for a swim on some hot afternoon. Barbecues come along about every two weeks and specials are always offered at our snack bar. This week's special features the newest addition to our ever-growing snack bar selection. Just $1.25 will get you the thickest milkshake in town!

Exciting events are in store for this fall. A joint meeting of the Carmel High School Student Council and our recently elected youth council brought about plans for a collaborated effort on teen dances and parties at the Youth Center.

These specific events will be sponsored by whatever school club the proceeds will go to, but Youth Center members will be admitted at a reduced fee and all snack bar receipts will go to the center. It is our hope that this type of cooperation will lead to greater unity among the kids in our community and also with the activities and events that Carmel High School and the Youth Center offer.

Meanwhile, we encourage those of you who have not had time to pick up a membership to come in and do so. Most of our activities are free to all members and some of our summer programs will be ending when school starts. There's no time like the present.

If you would like more information, or just a friendly chat, call us at 624-3285. We'd love to hear from you!

Fashion show celebrates I. Magnin, helps Hospice

THURSDAY evening, Aug. 1, guests gathered to celebrate the 25th anniversary of I. Magnin in Carmel, a festivity with proceeds benefiting the Hospice of the Monterey Peninsula.

Jewels from Laykin et Cie and furs from the I. Magnin collection were shown by local professional models dressed in black evening wear. A select array of foods and champagne, provided by local caterers and restaurants, delighted the guests' palates. One such delight was chocolate truffles.

In attendance for this elegant evening were Carol Seres, I. Magnin store manager; Judy Josephson, I. Magnin special events director; Lorraine Star, department manager; Artie Early, fund-raising coordinator for the Hospice; Bob Brower, president of the board of directors of the Hospice. Brower, owner of Chateau Julien in Carmel Valley, served Chateau Julien dry sherry to the guests.

Also joining in the celebration were Bill and Arlene Green of Carmel, Nina Talbott of Carmel, Don and Maggie Hays of Carmel, Ilona and Ted Leidig of Carmel, Tom May of Carmel, Phil Coniglio of Carmel; Leat Bissell of Carmel, J. Wenzler and Debrah Wenzler of Carmel Highlands, Barbara Burdick of Pebble Beach, Phyllis Hubbard of Carmel, Bridgit and Ned Thomas of Carmel Valley, Dottie Murphy of Pebble Beach, and Gerry Longstreth of Carmel, first store manager of I. Magnin.

I. Magnin of Carmel, in its 25-year history, has been managed by only two people. The first store manager was Gerry Longstreth and the current manager for more than eight years is Carol Seres.

BOOK SALE BENEFITS LIBRARY

Friday and Saturday, Aug. 2-3, marked another successful annual book sale to benefit Harrison Memorial Library in Carmel.

Banquet tables filled with books were spread out through the Carmel High School cafeteria, and book lovers had their choice of hundreds of volumes. Preparation for the sale is a year-long project.

Friends of the Harrison Memorial Library welcome continued community support and seek not only donations of books of "excellent quality literature," but also a large place to store the books in the months preceding the sale. Donations are tax deductible. Proceeds go towards new books for the Harrison Memorial Library. For further information contact 624-READ.

HOSPICE officials chatted during the benefit at I. Magnin in Carmel. Artie Early (center) is fund-raising coordinator; Robert Brower (right) is president of the Hospice board; Patty Brower joined in the conversation. (Sarah Bouhaben photo).

Participating in the book sale Friday afternoon were Rick Pettit of Carmel, Richard Allen of Salinas, Imo Forga of Carmel, Douglas Palk of Monterey, Scott Salyers of Pacific Grove and Bruce Zanetta of Carmel Valley.

CARMEL CARTOONIST WEDS

Bill Bates, Carmel cartoonist, married Janet Fleishhacker of San Francisco Sunday, June 23 at the Fleishhacker estate, "Green Gables," in Woodside. The couple, who met four years ago on The Royal Viking Sky ship, will make their home in San Francisco.

CBI BENEFIT DINNER

Congregation Beth Israel of the Monterey Peninsula will have a benefit dinner Sunday, Aug. 11 at Hammerhead's Restaurant in Monterey.

This California nouvelle cuisine dinner is a fund-raising event to earn capital towards the construction of a new synagogue in Carmel Valley. For further information and reservations contact CBI, 151 Park St., Monterey, Calif. 93940.

PATIO RUMMAGE SALE PLANNED AUG. 16

The Women's Association of the Community Church of the Monterey Peninsula will have its annual patio rummage sale from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Friday, Aug. 16 and 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 17. The sale will be at the church located on Carmel Valley Road, one mile from Highway 1.

BABIES BORN AT COMMUNITY HOSPITAL

Alexandria Patricia, a daughter, was born July 5 to Oran and Patricia Cogdill II of Pebble Beach.

Twin daughters — Megan Rachel and Caitlin MacKenzie — were born July 8 to Dave and Debbie Travaile of Carmel.

Gavin Scott Edward, a son, was born July 21 to Ken and Irene Edward of Carmel.

BILL AND ARLENE Green of Carmel were among those who attended the 25th anniversary party of I. Magnin in Carmel Aug. 1. Proceeds from the event benefitted the Hospice of the Monterey Peninsula (Sarah Bouhaben photo).

Mayor Townsend gets a surprise tea party

CARMEL MAYOR Charlotte Townsend, now in Hiroshima, Japan, attending a peace conference, was surprised by city employees who threw an Oriental-motif party on the eve of the mayor's Aug. 6 departure. Several of the women employees dressed in kimonos and provided decorations and hors d'oeuvres. The mayor was surprised with a money tree gift for expenses, plus a pair of T-shirts promoting Carmel Youth Baseball. Opened fortune cookies revealed humorous lines written by staff. Examples include: "Council member who shows his knees should shave his legs"; "Confucius say man who coach softball for little girls go bats"; "Fire chief who sits behind desk feels no heat" and "Tree guy who goes out on a limb for budget then leafs for vacation." Some of the partyers at city hall were: (from left) Betty Preedy, Mayor Townsend, Sandy Farrell, Sandi Davenport, Jeanne Brehmer and Chris Gibson. (Michael Gardner photo.)

Willow Tea Room recaptures turn-of-the-century elegance

SLIP INTO something more comfortable.

Don and Joan Miller think they have an acceptable answer for that suggestion. After 10 years of planning and waiting, they will soon open the Willow Tea Room in The Crossroads.

The Millers are aficionados of the era from 1880 to 1910. It was a time, Don Miller said, when life had a more leisurely and humane pace. Society's regard for science, technology and the human spirit existed in a greater balance and, paradoxically, intellectual and artistic development had reached a pivotal point in human history.

"It was a time of elegance and graciousness," Miller said.

It is that time, Don said, that they have tried to capture in the Willow Tea Room restaurant above their recently opened Willow Tea Room Studio, a shop that specializes in turn-of-the-century items.

"To our knowledge, it is the only attempt to do a genuine art nouveau interior for a restaurant in the United States — perhaps even in North America," Don said. "It is not just a slight art nouveau element. What we are trying to do is the 1900s in Paris."

The restaurant consists of a main dining room that can seat 60, a private dining room and a salon. The interior has a combination of reproductions and original furnishings from the turn of the century. An archway of filigree ironwork with reproductions of Tiffany glass leads into the dining room.

The all-brass chandeliers, Don said, are originals and the chairs in the main dining room are hand-carved replicas of a set by turn-of-the-century French artist and furniture maker Louis Majorelle. The chairs, Don said, were carved especially for the Tea Room.

There are original paintings and posters from the era including posters by Alphonse Mucha and a pastel by symbolist Gaston LaTouche, Don said. Some of the walls have hand-painted murals done by artist Paul Willner that imitate the style of the time. Even the colors and the hues used in the decor are of that period, Don said.

The food service includes a "presentation tea" during the day and a set dinner in the evening.

A presentation tea, Miller said, is a "tea that is served at a particular time to everybody at the same time."

Those who arrive after serving has begun, Miller said, will not be allowed into the main dining room. They can, however, order a meal in the "salon."

The tea, Miller explained, consists of six or seven courses — tea sandwiches, scones, fresh fruit, Devonshire cream, beverage, jams, pastries and "maybe a soufflé," Miller said.

This will all be served with a silver tea service and sandwich caddy at each table by waiters and waitresses dressed in fin de siècle clothes. The meal will be accompanied by live music from either a chamber music ensemble or a baby grand piano.

"It will take no less than one to one-and-a-half hours," Miller said. He plans to have two presentation teas a day.

"We plan on special occasion teas such as a Mother's Day tea, a tea honoring Toulouse-Lautrec or readings from authors of the era," Miller said.

The evening meal, Miller said, is a set four- or five-course meal of Parisian cafe cuisine and a choice two or three entrees.

"Parisian cafe food is between French country and continental cooking," Miller said. "It is hard to describe. It is not as plain as country or as small portions as continental."

Examples of some of the food are navarin of lamb, pork Wellington and raspberry chicken, Miller said.

Dinner is not served in a set time period, as is the daytime tea.

Future plans of the Tea Room include tea dances and an evening cabaret featuring a chanteuse.

The Millers said they took the name Willow Tea Room from the original founded in Glasgow, Scotland in 1904 by a Mrs. Cranston. Coincidentally, Mrs. Cranston's great-niece, Mrs.

Stanley Matheson, lives in Pacific Grove, Miller said.

"She brought us many articles about the original tea rooms," Miller said. "We had no idea she lived here."

The Millers plan that the Tea Room will be a different environment.

"What we really want people to do is to relax while we spoil them," Joan Miller said.

BIG SUR GETS A NEW RESTAURANT

Redwoods can grow for thousands of years but human beings have a tendency to move a little faster. Try to think like a coastal redwood. Forty years is simply "a day in the life" and two years is positively a blur for a tree in Big Sur.

But it took Gary Koeppel almost two years to get a permit from the Coastal Commission to build what he said is the first new restaurant on the Big Sur coast in 40 years. Koeppel is the owner of the Coast Gallery on Highway 1 at Lafler Canyon.

The earliest completion date, he estimates, is the fall of 1986 and the latest date the spring of 1987.

"I am not a restaurateur so I am seeking a qualified operator to lease and run the facility," Koeppel said. "I want someone who will develop a restaurant with the proper kind of food for the Big Sur customer and area."

The building, Koeppel said, will consist of one two-story redwood "water tank" 22 feet high and 32 feet in diameter. The water tank concept matches the adjoining Coast Gallery that is made from two redwood water tanks Koeppel said he purchased from a Navy hospital in 1974.

The second story of the new tank is planned as an indoor restaurant with a bridge that connects to the roof of the lower gallery. That roof will be transformed into a outdoor restaurant. Together, the two spaces will have a total of 100 seats.

The first floor of the new structure can be used as an expanded wine cellar and delicatessen or a shop, according to Koeppel. The restaurant operator would also have the lease on that area, he said.

"It will be the only restaurant on the entire 100-mile coast that has three views: a view of the ocean, a view of a sleepy redwood canyon and a view of a flowing mountain stream," Koeppel said.

Although he became frustrated with the delays at the Coastal Commission, Koeppel said he is "gratified that all 12 commissioners voted with an emphatic yes to the proposal."

THE COAST GALLERY in Big Sur has received a permit from the Coastal Commission to build a restaurant as an addition to its facility. The circular redwood building was designed by the architectural firm of S.F.B. Morse and Associates of Pacific Grove and is shown here in a sketch by artist Olof Dahlstrand. Owner Gary Koeppel said the building will be delivered intact.

The gallery, Koepfel said, shows the works of 200 craftspeople and has a candle shop, beverage bar and a wine cellar.

DUST STARTS TO SETTLE AT THE PLAZA

Between the comings and goings of Bank of America, support beam replacement, walkways and remodeling, Carmel Plaza has appeared to specialize in construction more than retail recently.

One project is coming to an end, and where once was a Versateller on Ocean Avenue now is at least one dress shop, Fiori. The other store fronting onto Ocean Avenue, Kolonaki, is scheduled to open Aug. 15.

Fiori is the first shop to open of the four new spaces that have taken the place of the Bank of America on the corner of Mission Street and Ocean Avenue. The bank relocated to the corner of Mission Street and Seventh Avenue. Fiori has one of the two spaces facing onto Ocean Avenue.

Owner Carla Throgmorton said the shop is designed not to appeal to an age bracket but a style.

"We have some great things from Europe and I am very excited about carrying the San Francisco label, Esprit," Throgmorton said.

Though many people tend to think of Esprit as for younger women, Throgmorton said the line has been "expanding recently and is appealing to a more mature customer. I am always surprised with the range that they have now."

A broad range is what Throgmorton said she is aiming for at the store.

"My store tends toward fun clothes with clean, classic lines. It is not 'way out' or 'trendy' clothing," she said.

Fun is not always frivolous, she added.

"We have outfits that women can wear to their jobs as well as play clothes," Throgmorton said. "I am trying to address a group that has not necessarily been addressed in Carmel. Serious clothing for the contemporary woman or girl — not all frills and trendy get-ups."

The clothes are in the moderate price range, Throgmorton said.

"I look for quality and to keep the price within the working woman's range," she said.

The new store, Throgmorton said, is "roughly" 1,500 sq. ft. and done in "gorgeous colors — shades of pink, lilac and mauve, lots of glass and mirrors and gray carpeting. It has a streamlined character."

The Ocean Avenue frontage location of the store Throgmorton said was a main factor in her decision to open a store of her own. She has worked in retail for the past 15 years and found that location is very important.

"I have always wanted a store of my own. When this location came up I wanted to pursue it. I was very fortunate to get a lease. I am very excited about it," she said.

Her husband, Barry Throgmorton, "has been a big help in putting the store together," she added. He owns Peninsula Real Estate in Carmel.

"He really has been working 16-hour days to get everything done," she said.

How does it feel to work in a former vault?

"People keep coming up and asking us if we have the Versateller. I tell them we will take the cash deposits but anything else has to go down to the bank on the corner of Mission Street and Seventh Avenue," she said. Only kidding folks, only kidding.

COACHMAN'S INN CHANGES HANDS

The Coachman's Inn on San Carlos Street near Seventh Avenue has changed hands from Jeffrey and Andrea Colker who bought the motel in 1983 to Dr. Gordon and Sandy Steuck. Dr. Steuck is an endodontist — a root canal specialist.

Sandy Steuck is the one relegated to the duties at the Coachman's Inn.

"I was interested in it after I had worked on some apartments we owned in Marina. I worked very hard but enjoyed it very much," Sandy Steuck said.

"There is a lot more to learn in this business than I anticipated," she added. "I have not taken a day off yet."

Her employees, she said, have been "very supportive" and she and her husband "appreciate them in every way."

They do not plan to make any changes, she said, particularly without the planning commission's blessing.

DESIGNER MOVES TO VILLAGE COURT

If you need to find residential and commercial interior designer Oliver White, do not look on Dolores Street anymore. He has moved to the Village Court on Mission Street — the former location of Norstad Ceramics.

White said his building recently was sold as part of the Doud estate, his lease was nearly up and the building might be scheduled for a remodel. Sounds like enough reasons for me to move.

POT BELLY STOVE WILL BE ENCHANTED COTTAGE

New owners of the Pot Belly Stove on Fifth Avenue in Carmel next to the General Store restaurant are Robert Ratekin and Deborah Hartunian. They plan to name their glass and gift store The Enchanted Cottage and move in on Sept. 1 of this year.

SETTING THE RECORD STRAIGHT

Lee Chamberlin would like folks to know that she made a little boo-boo. She printed in the Carmel Business Association bulletin the wrong reservation deadline for the September Carmel Business Association annual barbecue. The event is scheduled for Sept. 14 and her deadline was printed as Sept. 17. The actual deadline is Sept. 11.

FOR YOUR CALENDAR

The Professional Women's Network will feature Design Connections at its noon Aug. 13 membership showcase brown bag luncheon in The Crossroads Community Room. Admission is free.

CARLA THROGMORTON and her buddy "Bud" are getting her new women's clothing store, Fiori, ready at the Carmel Plaza. Fiori is located in one of the new spaces on Ocean Avenue in the former location of the Bank of America. Bud, though tastefully dressed in a sporty all-white outfit, will not be one of the fashion consultants. (Michael Gardner photo.)

Design Connections is a new company founded by Jennifer Bukey and Susan Block-Farrington and will present the J-Wag clothing designs of Jan Wagstaff.

BOTH LANDED AT SAME SPOT

The two parties which made Monterey Bay known and later made Monterey exist both came ashore on the same part of the beach, just south of the Presidio of Monterey on Pacific St., in present-day Monterey. They were groups led by Sebastian Vizcaino in 1602 and Fr. Junipero Serra in 1770. A monument marks the location.

OBITUARIES

Mary F. Dudley

Memorial services took place Friday, Aug. 2 at the Church of the Wayfarer in Carmel for Mary Frances Dudley, a longtime resident of Carmel who died July 28 at the Hospice of the Monterey Peninsula. She was 82.

She was one of California's first certified psychiatric technicians, and spent her career working with mentally retarded children at Pacific State Hospital in Spadra.

In Carmel, she was active as a volunteer with various fund drives including the American Heart Association, Multiple Sclerosis Foundation, Red Cross and March of Dimes. She was a member of the Carmel Foundation.

Survivors include her sister Ruth Brewer of Tulsa, Okla.; three nephews, Robert Brewer and Nicholas Dudley, both of Texas; and James Cardwell of Carmel; and a grandnephew Shannon Cardwell, a former postal superintendent at Carmel Post Office.

The family suggests memorial contributions to the Hospice of the Monterey Peninsula, 8900 Carmel Valley Road, Carmel, Calif. 93923.

Bruce Hotchkiss

Memorial services are planned at 2 p.m. Thursday at Carmel Presbyterian Church for Bruce M. Hotchkiss of Del Mesa Carmel, retired owner of the Hotchkiss Mortuary in Tracy, who died July 20. He was 72.

Born Jan. 27, 1913 in Denver, Colo., he was an Army Air Corps veteran of World War II. He was a graduate of Colorado College and San Francisco College of Mortuary Science.

He and his wife Evelyn moved to Tracy in 1937 when they became managers of the DeMark Mortuary which they purchased in 1945 and renamed the Hotchkiss Mortuary. He retired in 1979 due to ill health.

He was past president of the Lions Club of Tracy, past master of the Mount Oso Masonic Lodge F&AM, past president of the National Funeral Directors Association, former officer with the California Funeral Directors Association, past president of the Tracy Community Hospital Board, former president of the Tracy Chamber of Commerce and member of American Legion, Ben Ali Shrine of Stockton, Scottish Rite of Sacramento, San Joaquin Farm Bureau, U.P.E.C. Lodge, Tracy Golf and Country Club and Carmel Presbyterian Church.

In addition of his wife, survivors include his son Bruce of Pebble Beach; his sister Gladys Tillquist of Denver, and two grandchildren.

Funeral services took place July 24 in the Hotchkiss Mortuary Chapel in Tracy, with burial in the Tracy Public Cemetery.

The family suggests memorial contributions to Hotchkiss Family Endowment Fund for Robert Louise Stevenson School, Bank of Stockton, Tracy Granch, 1175 Tracy Blvd., Tracy, Calif. 95376.

Justino Cerenio

Memorial services with full military honors took place July 27 at the Garden of Memories Cemetery in Salinas for Justino ("Jim") Cerenio, an employee of the Postal Service in Carmel since his retirement from the Army in 1973, who died July 22 at his home in Salinas. He was 57.

Born in Makaweli, Kauai, Hawaii, he lived in Salinas since 1962.

He served in World War II, the Korean War and made three duty tours in Vietnam.

His decorations included the Silver Star, Distinguished Flying Cross, Soldier's Medal, Bronze Star, Air Medal, Army Commendation Medal and Purple Heart. He also received many service ribbons, sharp shooter medals and foreign decorations as well as membership in the select President's One Hundred.

Survivors include his wife Dolores; two daughters, Moana Becker of Kensington and Nevorah Cerenio of Salinas; a son Alan James Cerenio of Salinas; a brother Barney Talite of Salinas; two sisters, Trini Dumlaio of Reno, Nev., and Connie Kahunanui of Maui, Hawaii; and two grandchildren.

Private burial will take place at Golden Gate National Cemetery in San Bruno.

William R. Julian

Private cremation took place at the Little Chapel by-the-Sea for William R. Julian, a retired university professor and Carmel Valley Manor resident since 1971 who died July 29 at his home. He was 75.

Born May 15, 1910 in Chicago, Ill., he was a graduate of Chapman College and had graduate degrees from the University of Southern California and Stanford. He taught in California for 30 years before he retired in 1970 as an English literature professor at San Francisco State where he taught for 15 years.

A retired Naval captain, he served in World War II and the Korean War.

Survivors include his wife Elizabeth; two daughters, Lisa Ow of Santa Cruz and Eleanor Arnold of San Rafael; and two grandchildren.

Inurnment took place at Sunnyside Mausoleum in Long Beach. The Paul Mortuary was in charge of arrangements.

Christian Scientists view Bible

Some members of the local Christian Science Church found their travels to Boston made memorable by a little-known discovery: a multimedia Bible exhibit at one corner of the Christian Science Center across from the busy Prudential Center in Boston's Back Bay.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Reid Wagstaff, Mr. and Mrs. Bigelow Boysen, Mrs. Henry Allen Nichols and Mrs. John E. Boyum — all of Carmel — were pleased to find this Bible exhibit was not a stuffy collection of ancient texts, nor an attempt to popularize a particular view of religion.

Rather, it has been designed as a non-denominational exhibit with displays and films for people of all ages and persuasions (Protestants, Catholics and Jews collaborated in its design.)

With individual hand-held receivers they were able to follow along a lighted "time-line" showing the chronology of Biblical events.

A 44-foot-long plexiglass map at the back of the ground floor room lit up at the touch of a button to trace historical journeys by famous Bible characters — Abraham, Moses, Jesus and Paul. Their visit concluded with a film of the Holy Land.

On departure, one of the hostesses explained how the Christian Science Church conceived of this non-denominational Bible exhibit.

"So often life is hurried," she said. "The Church wanted to provide a place where visitors to the city, and the city-dweller, could easily find physical and mental space for reflection and renewal.

"The reflections of Biblical people led to a fuller, freer life. It seemed very natural to let the Bible speak for itself — to offer a place where the visitor and the Bible could have a dialogue."

The Golden Years

By Myles Williams

If you want to live a long life, moderation is the key. That's the advice of University of Southern California psychologist Arthur N. Schwartz, after studying the lifestyles of 100 persons who have reached the age of 100. "The common denominator in the lifestyles of centenarians," said Schwartz, "is moderation." And that behavior seems to have been their style throughout their lives. Schwartz's subjects neither overate nor underate; if they drank, they did so moderately; they were conscientious workers, but not workaholics; most slept eight hours a night. Even their exercise was moderate: they tended to be walkers rather than runners.

Which state has the largest concentration of older Americans? If you guessed Florida, you're right. Some 17.3 percent of that state's residents are over the age of 65. As of the 1980 Census, there were seven states with more than a million senior residents each: California, New York, Florida, Pennsylvania, Texas, Illinois and Ohio.

Remember When? July 31, 1948 — Idlewild International Airport, now John F. Kennedy, the largest in the world, was dedicated by President Harry S. Truman.

THE MONTEREY County Planning Commission on Aug. 14 will consider a plan to prohibit additional wastewater discharge into

County planners to consider ban on waste dumping in Monterey Bay

MONTEREY COUNTY — fearful of pesticide-tainted water or effluent being dumped in Monterey Bay — has under consideration a plan to stop any such attempts.

The county planning commission will review a proposed ban on dumping in Monterey Bay when it meets Wednesday, Aug. 14 in the county courthouse in Salinas.

The tool for the ban will be a series of amendments to the land use plans for North County, Del Monte Forest, Big Sur and the Carmel area. (The Big Sur plan still is to be adopted by supervisors.) The amendments will be considered at 10 a.m.

Monterey County Planning Director Robert Slimmon explained that each amendment is designed to prohibit wastewater discharge into Monterey Bay, from Santa Cruz to San Luis Obispo.

The amendments were developed in response to two recent attempts to discharge wastewater in Monterey Bay, Slimmon said.

The first try came from the Westlands Water District, which represents about 125 growers in the Los Banos area. The district was told by the federal Interior Department to halt discharge of pesticide-tainted wastewater into Kesterson Reservoir near Los Banos.

At first the district proposed to pump the wastewater to Monterey Bay — a plan that immediately was assailed by local environmentalists and county health officials.

"That plan is deadlier than a mackerel," said Larry Glandon, an engineer with the state Water Resources Control Board.

The Westlands Water District has until April 1, 1986 to comply with the federal ban on dumping wastewater in Kesterson Reservoir.

Another proposal still facing Monterey County is a plan by the sewer district that services the Gilroy and Morgan Hill area to discharge its effluent into Monterey Bay near Santa Cruz.

The amendments also must be adopted by the board of supervisors and Coastal Commission.

Carmel ice cream shop faces new city hurdle

MIKE MONTANA and Jim Newhouse have encountered roadblocks designed to deny the Carmel Creamery ice cream parlor planned for the former Back Pocket location in Red Eagle Lane just off Ocean Avenue.

The board of adjustments last week tossed another monkey wrench into their plans when members decided not to review the proposed "findings of fact" for denial until their Aug. 21 meeting.

The city council Tuesday night asked the board to meet in a special session Aug. 14 to review the findings for denial of the Carmel Creamery application. The council then will meet in a special session at 4 p.m. Aug. 23 at Sunset Center to review the appeal.

The board July 24 denied the application so Newhouse and Montana chose to appeal the decision to the city council and an Aug. 6 public hearing was scheduled.

Board members met July 31 as the planning commission, but apparently chose not to reconvene as the board of adjustments to adopt the findings, which in turn delayed the Carmel Creamery.

But the council could not consider the appeal because the board of adjustments had not officially adopted the findings to support reasons for denial.

The delay has made the applicants angry with the city.

"They have the power to do anything they want," Montana told the Carmel Pine Cone/Carmel Valley Outlook after learning the appeal would be delayed.

"We were just caught by surprise. They (the city) have time on their side," he said.

Montana was asked whether he believes the refusal of the board of adjustments to reconvene before Aug. 6 is just a tactic to force Carmel Creamery to withdraw so that master leaseholder Dick Bruhn can rent the space.

"Some people could feel that," Montana replied.

Montana had "no comment" on whether he and Newhouse now pay rent for the location.

The Carmel Creamery ice cream parlor application has been before the city for several months and generated national television coverage when a committee recommended approval — so long as there were no ice cream cone sales.

The board at one time delayed the application so that it could study whether the two parking spaces in front of the site could be eliminated to make room for outdoor seating.

It was revealed that the same board had decided earlier that those two parking spaces were illegal.

THEN THE board found a new weapon to use to deny the application — water.

The city had on the books July 24 an ordinance that prohibits a new business if it would consume more water than the previous use. If the applicant saves water elsewhere in the city, then the higher water use business could open.

Montana and Newhouse proposed to save approximately 45,000 gallons annually because they will open a shoe store to replace Orange Julius and Swensen's on the southwest corner of Mission Street and Ocean Avenue.

But the board decided the water conservation ordinance needed more restrictions, so members ignored the loophole and said the ice cream parlor would use more water than the Back Pocket consumed. Thus, the application was denied.

The city council July 2 officially eliminated the loophole that allowed developers to save water elsewhere in return for permission to open a higher water use shop.

The question is how long master leaseholder Dick Bruhn will allow that space to be vacant.

CAA exhibits Dominguez paintings

Watercolorist charts peninsula

By ANNE PAPINEAU

IF, AS a youth, Miguel Dominguez's faith in his art or his destiny was ever in question, the Monterey Peninsula urged him back on course.

Today, Dominguez no longer needs to be near the multiple art galleries of Carmel in order to find a market for his paintings. Galleries in New York City, Cape Cod, Mass. and Santa Fe, N.M. vie for the artist's water-

'I believe that talent is passed on genetically, I really do. I think it's virtually impossible to pluck someone off the street and to teach them the fundamentals to become an artist.'

color renderings of Point Lobos, the Salinas Valley and other local scenes.

He is an artist who calls the peninsula home — not of necessity but of love.

"You don't become an artist at a certain point in your life," explained Dominguez, a Carmel Valley resident. "Mentally you know you are. I think that is the reason you often hear of doctors, lawyers and other professionals breaking away to become an artist."

A native of El Paso, Tex., he credits his father as being an early artistic influence.

"Father would have been a painter himself when he was a young man — if he weren't responsible for helping to support his brothers and sisters. He did become a painter, a housepainter."

At age six Dominguez moved with his family from Texas to Gonzales, a farming community in the Salinas Valley. Prompted by his father's drawings of animals, Dominguez began to sketch and paint as a child. It is an interest and talent that his own two sons, Miguelin, 13, and Alexis, 10, also share.

"I believe that talent is passed on genetically, I really do. I think it's virtually impossible to pluck someone off the street and to teach them the fundamentals to become an artist."

Dominguez, in addition to enjoying commercial success, has also achieved artistic acclaim. He was asked to join the Carmel Art Association a dozen years ago.

"I feel very lucky to have been invited. Most of the artists must petition to become members," he said.

He is also the winner of numerous awards and his paintings were included in a 1979 documentary film depicting the arts in the Western Hemisphere. The film is screened in Spanish-speaking countries in both South America and Europe.

THE ESTABLISHMENT acknowledges him, yet Dominguez is essentially a self-taught artist.

"I did not receive a formal education in the strict sense of the word. While attending Hartnell College (in Salinas) I exhausted every art class. My teachers were Joe Bragdon and Leon Amyx."

Dominguez explained that although his parents were supportive of his art and that "They presumed some day I would be an artist," he decided after attending junior college he should "pursue something 'practical.'"

"So I studied landscape architecture at Cal Poly San Luis Obispo. Thank goodness Uncle Sam intervened and I was drafted."

Dominguez said he welcomed his entrance into the military.

"I wanted to see the world. I was tantalized by the fact my older brother spent two years in Italy. My other brother toured the United States when he was in the Army. I ended up (spending) two years at Fort Ord."

Dominguez married his "high school sweetheart," Alexandra. It seemed as though family ties and even the United States Army conspired to keep Dominguez close to the artistic hub of the central coast.

He did stray away for six years, when the couple resided in the San Francisco Bay

THE CENTRAL Coast, from Point Lobos to the Long Valley of Salinas, are the inspiration for the award-winning watercolors of Carmel Valley artist Miguel Dominguez. His Area. There Dominguez was employed as a draftsman and his wife taught Spanish at a junior high school.

"Certain people eventually change careers. I left my drafting position because my desire to become an artist became greater."

Dominguez admitted it took a certain measure of "recklessness" to forego a steady paycheck, pull up stakes and try to earn a living with his paintbrush.

"When I explained to my boss what my interests were, he said, 'Well, if you've got an itch, you've got to scratch it.'"

Working at first in the dry brush pen and ink technique, Dominguez charted the ruggedness of Point Lobos and the rustic scenes of "The Long Valley" already immortalized in words by John Steinbeck.

DOMINGUEZ acknowledges that not only the beauty of the land but the many galleries of the peninsula influenced his decision to try to build a career in art here.

"This is a dynamic art community in the sense there's so much of it," he said. "Art is very prevalent. You find artwork from throughout the country exhibited in Carmel. And you find artists from around the world coming to the Monterey Peninsula to paint."

Dominguez said that his paintings usually travel more than he does.

"My primary reason for travel is for subject matter. Living on the Monterey Peninsula, almost everything I wish to paint is within an hour's drive."

search of points of interest that he can include in paintings, such as a windmill or a gathering of cattle or sheep.

"I am what is termed a studio artist. I find painting outdoors very distracting. You have to be very well-equipped to paint in an outdoor setting. Depending on the weather you have to contend with the bugs and sometimes the tourists.

"Given the choice, I would rather paint outdoors. There is no substitute for what your eyes take in. It also poses a greater challenge, in that you have to interpret changes in the landscape. Color changes as the day goes on, often hourly."

Dominguez works chiefly in his Carmel Valley studio, painting early in the morning or late at night when distractions are fewer. His hobby, he added, is drawing.

"I do drawings when I feel I have spare time, which is little. Drawing is fundamental to my work, it's the basis for my art. Oftentimes these sketches turn into studies for my paintings."

The artist said he derives great satisfaction wandering along Point Lobos or through Garland Park, "sketchbooks in hand."

"It's a time when I'm not inhibited. These sketches have no ultimate destination — such as a gallery. They're for my pleasure."

Dominguez said he took up watercolors at the suggestion of friends. Now he is

'I find painting outdoors very distracting. You have to be very well-equipped to paint in an outdoor setting. Depending on the weather you have to contend with the bugs and sometimes the tourists.'

rediscovering another medium: oil painting.

"Working in oils presents me the opportunity to do things that are not possible in watercolor — color mixing for one thing. And there are the less obvious things, such as the luminosity which is inherent in oils."

Dominguez's sons share their father's love of art. Miguelin, who studied watercolor with Nancy Johnson, has already exhibited his work in a gallery.

"Somebody said being an artist is not a profession, it's a way of life," Dominguez noted. "Almost everything you do revolves around your work. It's very much a pleasure. Sometimes I hesitate to call it work, and it should be that way."

TEXAS NATIVE Miguel Dominguez moved to the Salinas Valley at age six, and often returns to that region to capture its rural scenes in his paintings. (Photograph by Mike Gardner.)

WATERCOLORS by Miguel Dominguez will be featured, with the works of Will Bullis throughout August in the Carmel Art Association

Galleries. The galleries are on Delores Street between Fifth and Sixth avenues in Carmel. Point Lobos, the Salinas Valley and other local environs are showcased in the Dominguez collection.

Hidden Valley concert aims at youthful ears

CONCERT GOERS will learn whether the wolf catches Peter when the Hidden Valley Summer Seminar Orchestra performs at 7 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 11 in the Hidden Valley Theatre, Carmel Valley.

The concert program will include the Prokofiev classic, Peter and the Wolf, narrated by Congressman Leon Panetta. Saint-Saens's The Carnival of the Animals, another work of interest to children, will be performed. A contemporary favorite, Tubby the Tuba, will feature Warren Deck as tuba soloist. Conducting the 75-member youth scholarship orchestra are Henry Holt and Denis de Coteau.

Henry Holt returns for his fourth year as music director of the Hidden Valley Summer Orchestral Seminar. He has conducted the Seattle Opera in Wagner's The Ring for 10 summers. Holt currently serves as artistic director of the Los Angeles Opera Theater.

Denis de Coteau is music director and conductor of the San Francisco Ballet. Under de Coteau's baton the Oakland Symphony Youth Orchestra became the first American Youth Orchestra to win bronze and silver medals at the Van Karajan International Competition in Germany.

Warren Deck of the New York Philharmonic became its principal tubist in 1979. He also teaches tuba at the Mannes School of Music.

Orchestra members from California, Oregon and Illinois were chosen by audition for the prestigious three-week seminar, now in its 22nd year. Each student receives a full-tuition scholarship made possible by the estate of Iris and David Alberto.

Admission to the concert is free. Concert goers are welcome to come at 6 p.m. with their picnic baskets. The theater is off Carmel Valley Road near Ford Road in Carmel Valley.

WARREN DECK of the New York Philharmonic will perform Tubby the Tuba during the concert for young people at Hidden Valley Theatre. The free concert begins at 7 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 11. For details, call 659-3115.

Shuttle bus still running

The free shuttle serving downtown Monterey, Fisherman's Wharf, Cannery Row and the aquarium now runs two additional hours in the evening. The last shuttle will leave Cannery Row at 8:30 p.m.

The extended service is sponsored by the Cannery Row Merchants Association, according to the Monterey Department of Public Facilities.

Commenting on the expanded schedule, Public

Facilities Director Carl Anderson reported that it will now be possible for out-of-town visitors to spend an entire day exploring Monterey without tying up scarce parking.

"The shuttle has already proven to be a tremendous success," declared Anderson, who noted that the system has carried almost 180,000 passengers in its first four months of service.

"The new schedule," he continued, "should further reduce congestion along the Monterey waterfront. The city is grateful to the Cannery Row Merchants Association for sponsoring the additional service."

The shuttle, operated by the city and the aquarium, runs every 15 minutes from the East Custom House Garage, 9 a.m. to 8:30 p.m. There is a $3 fee for all-day parking. Riding the shuttle itself is free.

Troika Balalaikas appear at Forest Theater

PERFORMING on a collection of rare balalaikas ranging in size from small to enormous, the Troika Balalaikas will appear Sunday, Aug. 11 at the outdoor Forest Theater.

The free concert, part of the Forest Theater Sunday Afternoon Series, will begin at 2 p.m. The theater is on Mountain View at Santa Rita in Carmel.

Primed pecs flex during P.G. muscle celebration

OILED SPECIMENS of muscular development will flex their pecs for the judges during the 1985 Men's and Women's West Coast Bodybuilding Championships. The competition will take place Saturday, Aug. 10 at the Pacific Grove Middle School Auditorium.

The contest begins with pre-judging at 10 a.m. An evening performance is scheduled at 7 p.m., at which time winners will receive their trophies.

The competition is sponsored by Mike's Gym of Seaside and features four events: the men's novice Monterey championships, the men's open West Coast championships, the men's over-40 West Coast and the women's West Coast championships.

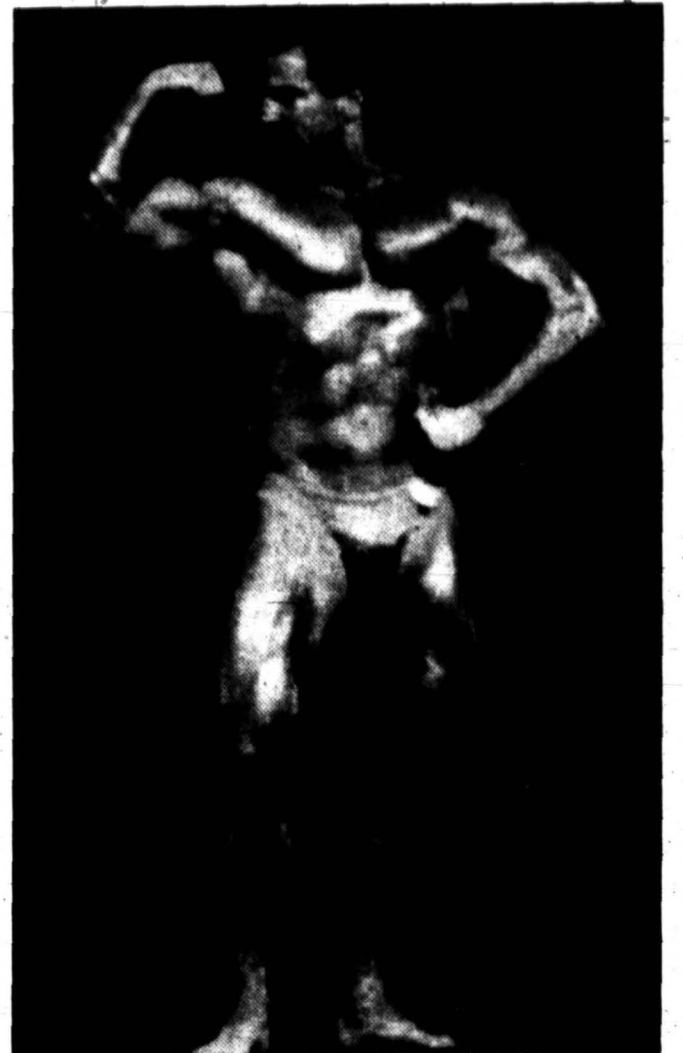

Guest poser will be Paul Daniels, the 1984 National Lightweight Champion and the 1984 West Coast overall winner. Daniels will also present a seminar on bodybuilding, nutrition and posing. It will begin at 5 p.m. Friday, Aug. 9 at Mike's Gym.

The contest is produced by Mike Moore and Rosario Marinello.

Tickets for the pre-judging are $5. Evening show admission is $12 for the main floor, $10 for the balcony. Pacific Grove Middle School Auditorium is at 835 Forest Ave. in Pacific Grove.

Tickets can be purchased in advance at Mike's Gym, 1914 Fremont Blvd., Seaside or at the auditorium box office the day of the contest.

For additional information, call 394-1001.

CHAMPION POSERS expected at the 1985 Men's and Women's West Coast Bodybuilding Championships include Mike Moore, 1985 first place winner at the Central California and Junior Northern California championships. The local event takes off Saturday, Aug. 10 at the Pacific Grove Middle School Auditorium, 835 Forest Ave., Pacific Grove.

Crisis center trains volunteers

Three times a year, the YWCA offers training classes to women in the community who are interested in serving on the Domestic Violence Crisis Line. These classes include the dynamics of family violence, crisis intervention techniques and appropriate legal action. This volunteer training takes place Tuesdays and Thursdays from 6 p.m. to 9 p.m. for three consecutive weeks beginning Tuesday, Sept. 10 at the YWCA office, 404 Camino El Estero, Monterey.

Jamesburg Players return with 'My Fair Lady'

BORN IN A Carmel Valley barn in 1975, the Jamesburg Players return to the footlights for two successive weekends in their own production of My Fair Lady.

The Lerner and Lowe musical is staged as a benefit for the Jamesburg School, a non-profit, private organization designed to serve the needs of elementary school-age children in the upper Carmel Valley.

My Fair Lady bows 8 p.m. Saturday and Sunday, Aug. 10-11, at Sunset Theater in Carmel. It will also run Friday and Saturday, Aug. 16-17.

The cast features John Prejean as Henry Higgins and Linda Prejean as Eliza Doolittle. "We cast ourselves in the leads; it's our one chance of the year to do some acting," Linda Prejean explained.

She co-founded the Jamesburg School — "very much a one-room schoolhouse" — with Carol Parkhurst.

"In a small school environment we get the opportunity to know each child. We're able to give them remedial work. The emphasis is on individualized learning," she noted. "Last year we had 16 students."

The Prejeans come from theatrical backgrounds. John received the Louisiana Players Guild award for best actor while studying drama at Louisiana State University.

Both he and Linda were members of the White Oaks Repertory Theater, an ensemble housed in what is now the home of Hidden Valley Music Seminars near Carmel Valley Village.

Funds raised by the four-night run of My Fair Lady are earmarked for the purchase of a computer, Linda Prejean said.

"We would like to develop an adult education program," she said. "We've offered belly dancing and had a Red Cross class. We would like to acquire a computer and offer classes to both adults and children."

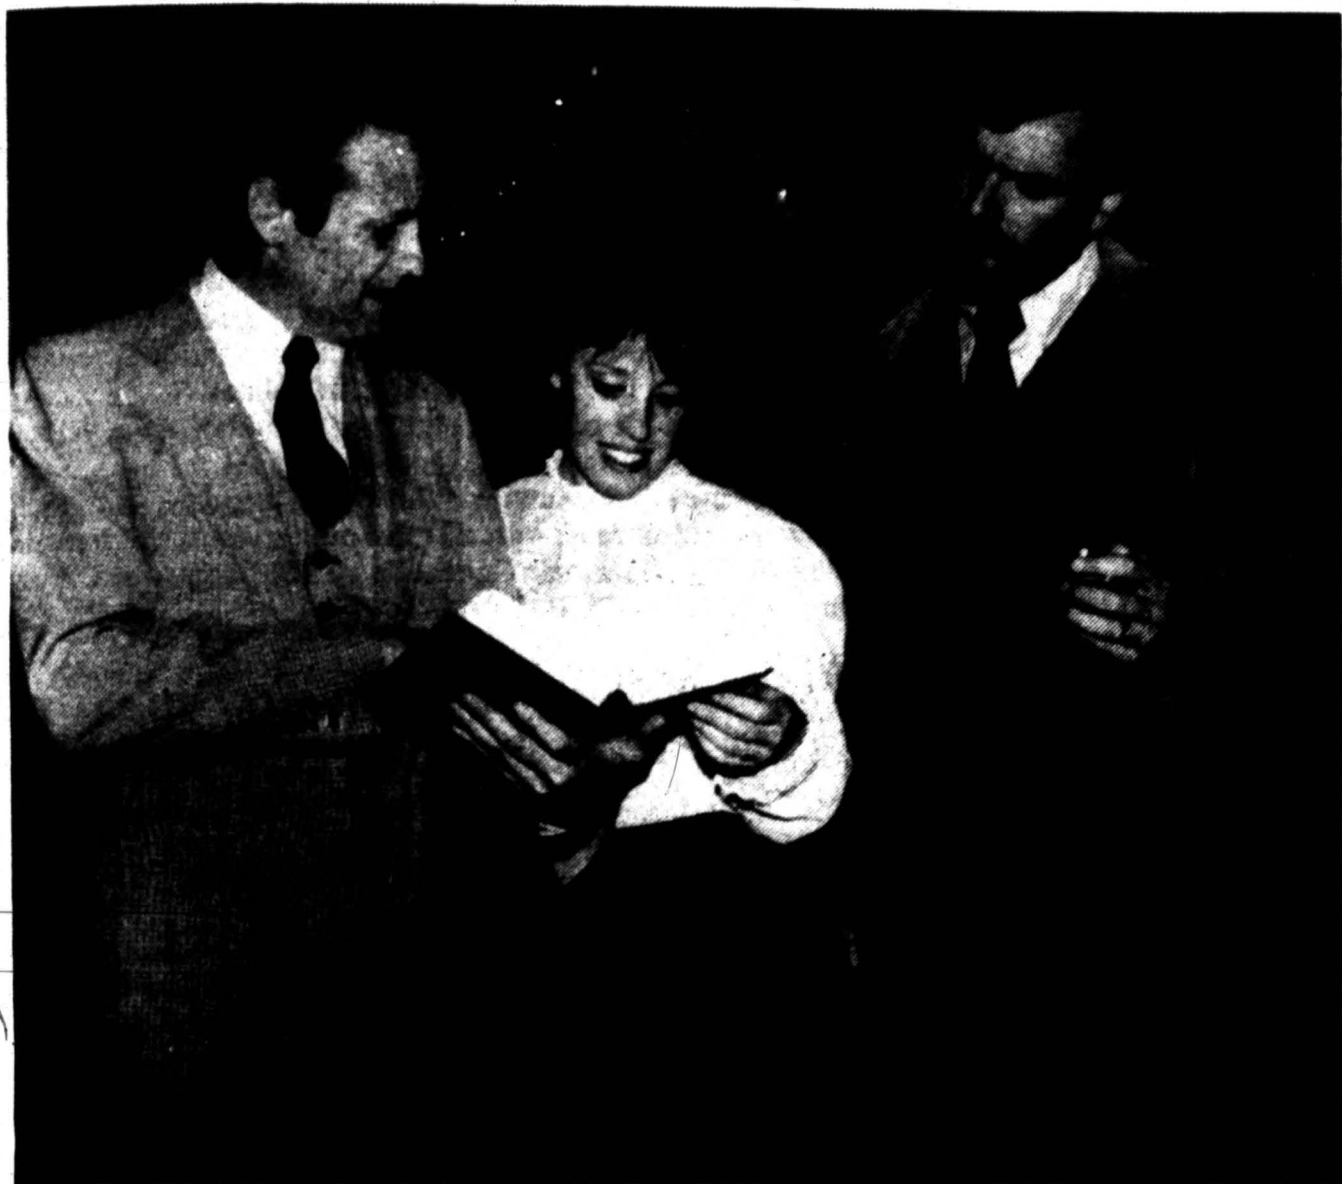

Last summer the Jamesburg Players staged Guys and Dolls. Proceeds from that production, she added, were used to purchase a solar panel to run lights at the school. So far, that panel is the sole source of electricity for the small facility.

Rounding out the cast of My Fair Lady at Sunset Theater will be Gordon Kramer as Colonel Pickering; Laura McCallum as Mrs. Pearce; Charles Doolittle as Eliza's father, Alfred P. Doolittle; Steve Moore as Freddy; Ken Croft as Harry; Larry Schmidt as Jamie; Debbie Resnick as Mrs. Hill and Ray Belleci as Zoltan Karpathy.

The musicians include Joan Swartz, piano; Ed Culver, bass; Lynn Wetzel, flute; Grant Rosen, clarinet; Chuck Winge, trumpet; Richard Conklin, drums and Jackson Stock, trombone.

For additional information about this benefit for the Jamesburg School, call 659-5384.

THE My Fair Lady cast includes, from left, John Prejean as Henry Higgins, Linda Prejean as Eliza Doolittle and Gordon Kramer as Colonel Pickering. Presented this weekend and next at Sunset Theater, the musical is adapted from George Bernard Shaw's Pygmalion.

Group observes Carl Jung's 110th birthday

The Monterey Peninsula Friends of C.G. Jung will show the film Fate to Face. This interview with Jung will be screened 7 p.m. Friday, Aug. 9 at Lecture Forum 103.

Also to be shown the same evening is the color film produced by Laurens van der Post, titled The Story of Carl Gustav Jung, which includes dramatic highlights of Jung's life and revolutionary ideas. Its three parts, shown as one unit, are: I. In Search of the Soul; II. 67,000 Dreams; and III. The Mystery That Heals.

Introductory comments on these films will be made by Gerd Max Cryns, Ph.D., a Jungian analyst who has practiced on the Monterey Peninsula for the past nine years. He will also moderate a discussion after the showing with panelists Ena Grundy and Garrett Stearly, both long-time Carmel residents.

The public is invited to this event, which will also serve to celebrate the 110th anniversary of Jung's birth. Tickets are $3, and may be purchased at the door. Call 649-8809 for more details or questions.

Gypsy

Gypsy, the musical fable based on the memoirs of stripper Gypsy Rose Lee, opens Friday, Aug. 9 on the Musical Stage of Hartnell College, Salinas.

The Western Stage production, directed by Bob Waldo, features such song standards as Everything's Coming Up Roses, Small World and All I Need Now is the Girl.

Gypsy continues at 8 p.m. Saturday, Sunday and Wednesday, Aug. 10, 11 and 14. Tickets are $9 to $13. The theater is at 156 Homestead Ave., Salinas. Tickets: 375-2111 or 758-1221.

Ondine

A nymph who springs from the sea and falls in love with a knight is the romantic core of Ondine. Jean Giraudoux's interpretation of this legendary romance is directed by Marcia Gambrell Hovick for the outdoor Forest Theater.

Ondine plays at 8:30 p.m. Thursdays, Fridays and Saturdays until Aug. 31. The theater is at Mountain View and Santa Rita in Carmel.

Admission is $6 for adults, $4 for full-time students and senior citizens over age 62. No reservations are taken and the box office opens at 7:30 p.m. Viewers are advised to dress warmly. Information: 624-1531.

'Pawn take pawn'

JIM BAILEY and Greg Coleman do battle on the people-sized chess board constructed in Monterey's Custom House Plaza. Admission is free to the Human Chess Game and other Monterey Bay TheatreFest productions, which conclude this weekend.

The Sorcerer

Gilbert and Sullivan's 1877 comic operetta The Sorcerer is staged by Monterey Peninsula College at the York School Theater, 9501 Monterey-Salinas Highway.

This light-hearted satire on Victorian mores and morals is directed by Nick Zanides with musical direction by Stephen Tosh.

The Sorcerer continues at 8 p.m. Friday and Saturday and 2 p.m. Sunday. Tickets are $6 at the door. Reservations: 372-2475.

The Winter's Tale

Passion and jealousy are transformed in this Shakespearean classic presented by The Western Stage at Hartnell College, Salinas.

Directed by Dennis Bigelow, The Winter's Tale plays at 8 p.m. Thursday, Aug. 8 and Monday, Aug. 12 on the Repertory Stage.

Admission is $7.50 Sundays through Thursdays and $8.50 Fridays and Saturdays, with discounts available for children under 12 and senior citizens. The theater is at 156 Homestead Ave., Salinas. Tickets: 375-2111.

Bus Stop

Bus Stop, William Inge's study of a collection of weary travelers holed up in a roadside diner for the night continues at The Studio Theatre Restaurant.

The play focuses on Cherie, a Kansas City nightclub singer, and Bo, a rancher who seeks to sweep her off her feet.

Dinner is served at 7 p.m., with curtain at 8:30 p.m. Thursdays through Sundays until Sept. 14. Times are one hour earlier on Sundays. Dinner and show price is $24.50. The theater restaurant is on Dolores between Ocean and Seventh in Carmel. Tickets: 624-1661.

Life with Father

Children, maids, relatives and Mother conspire to get Father properly baptized in the comedic Life with Father.

Adapted for the theater by Howard Lindsay and Russell Crouse, The Western Stage production continues on the Repertory Stage of Hartnell College in Salinas.

Curtain time is 8 p.m. Friday through Sunday, Aug. 9-11. A 2 p.m. matinee is scheduled Sunday, Aug. 11.

Tickets are $7.50 Sundays through Thursdays and $8.50 Fridays and Saturdays, with a $1 discount offered children and senior citizens. Hartnell College is at 156 Homestead Ave., Salinas. Tickets: 375-2111 or 758-1221.

THEATER REVIEW BY JOANNE TENENBAUM

'The Sorcerer' fails to cast magic spell

A MONTEREY Peninsula College production of Gilbert and Sullivan's comic operetta The Sorcerer, directed by Nick Zanides of Carmel, is currently onstage at the York School Theater on Highway 68.

Despite expert musical accompaniment, fine singing performances in the major roles and crisp costuming, this production does not quite gel.

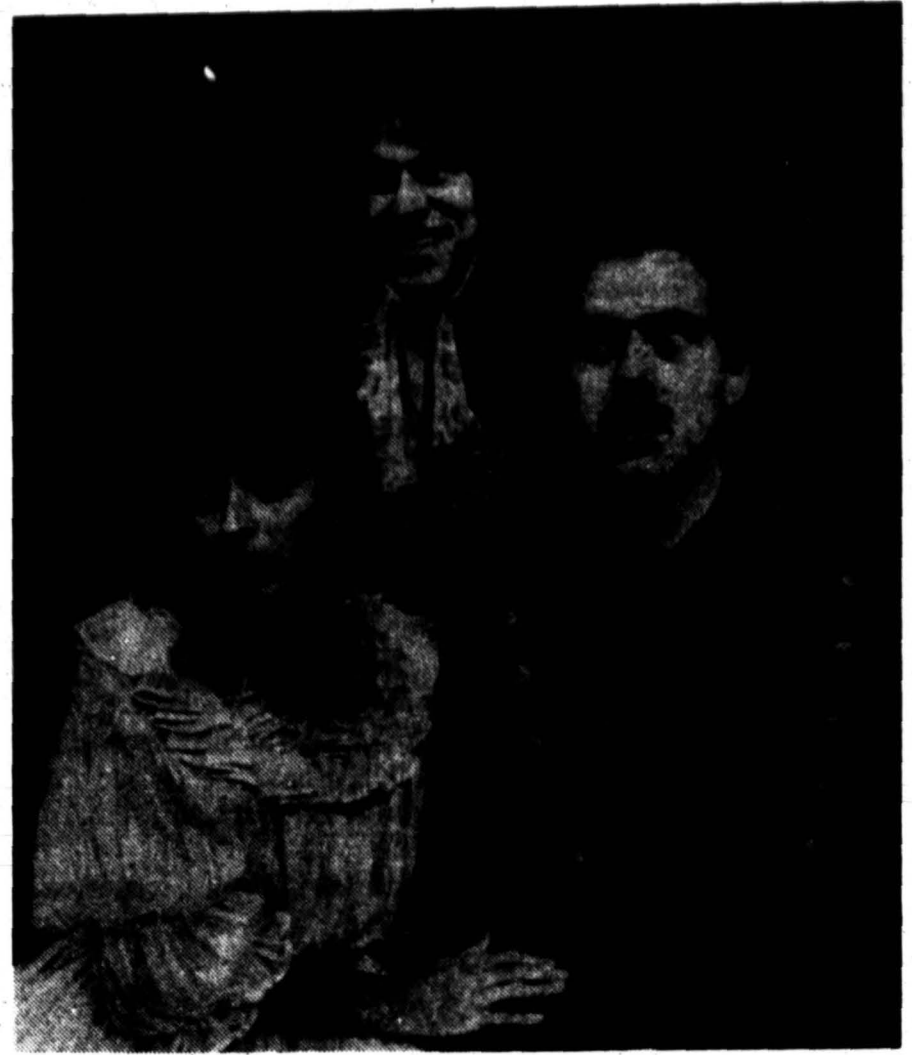

It is plagued by a lazy pace in which funny lines sink and songs bog down. It is hindered by a chorus that, for the most part, needs much more work. And it is not helped by a plot so slight that it requires snappy timing and sprightly choreography, which it lacks, to keep the audience diverted.

Gilbert and Sullivan's sorcerer is a streetwise, cockney con man called in by an idealistic young nobleman to change the social face of England. Alexis, the young nobleman, believes that people should marry without regard to rank or wealth, unaware of the fact that he is safe in saying so (he himself is betrothed to an extremely wealthy young lady).

To accomplish this social change, he proposes to buy a love potion that will cause those who drink it to fall in love with the first person they see, and he proposes to test the validity of his theory by secretly administering the potion to an entire village — his own.

It is easy to imagine the comic complications that are to result when the villagers awaken, especially considering the time — 1877. The time frame may be part of the problem, for this basic situation has much less comic force in 1985, and many funny lines fall flat to modern ears.

Bob Bogardus is splendid as Wells, the fast-talking sorcerer. He has a flashy, dashing appearance that suits the role, a fine flair for showmanship, and a strong voice. He also, thank 'eavens, keeps 'is cockney accent and 'is character while 'e sings.

Love philter's work

THE TWO YOUNG lovers, Aline and Alexis (Ana Foule and Jay Ostby), watch with John Wellington Wells (Robert Bogardus) as the love philter works its magic. The Gilbert and Sullivan musical continues at the York School Theatre.

MUSICAL DIRECTOR Stephen Tosh's synthesizer accompaniment is charmingly arranged and expertly played. It fills the theater with a full musical sound.

Musically, The Sorcerer offers many fine moments, with Aline's (Ana Foule's) fine, expressive soprano and Alexis' (Jay Ostby's) strong tenor setting the tone.

Foules is lovely as the distressed young heroine in love with Alexis, and her lyrical soprano, always in perfect control, is a high spot in the show. Ostby's voice sometimes seems too large for York's acoustics, but it is always on key and always in character. Together the two make some lovely music.

Jim Jensen turns in a charming performance as a vicar on the brink of dotage reminiscing about his youth, and Kelley Alexander is a treat as Sir Marmaduke Poindexter, Alexis' stuffy father. Alexander has a gift for conveying character in song, and his nasal-pitched Baronet comes through to great comic musical effect.

There is much to enjoy in The Sorcerer, especially musically, for Gilbert and Sullivan's widely acknowledged talent for witty lines and sprightly tunes is evident, but The Sorcerer is not on a par with Pinafore or the Mikado.

The play begins with three downbeat, slow numbers that — although well sung — create a sleepy pace, and technical problems further hinder the production.

On opening night, lighting was askew with unexpected moments of glare and hasty corrections made mid-song, and the chorus, with three exceptions, appeared to need much more rehearsal in movement, expression and singing in unison.

Joann Adair's pedestrian choreography is not much help, though possibly the chorus could not have managed more complicated movements.

On balance, the music is enjoyable but the production leaves much to be desired.

THEATER REVIEW

BY JOANNE TENENBAUM

Witty production of 'Ondine' plays at the Forest Theater

THE OUTDOOR Forest Theater in Carmel celebrates its 75th anniversary season with an enchanting production of Jean Giraudoux's three-act romantic fantasy, Ondine.

Directed by Marcia Gambrell Hovick, Ondine is an apt choice, for the play's fairy tale content and Bavarian setting seem almost made for the unique environment of the theater, and Ondine is delightful summer theater-going material — fabulous, witty, amusing and colorful.

This production also showcases the theater's technical expertise. Set design by Lance Jacobson and Ramie Wikdahl features a combination of indoor/outdoor setting (fisherman's cottage and royal court), and tricky lighting demands are well handled.

Loel Schuler's costumes demonstrate a fine eye for color balance as well as character enhancement. Ondine first appears, for example, in a flowing lavender dress cut to resemble a water blossom, enhancing her character as a creature of the water. And sound effects, too, are on cue and well handled.

Giraudoux's Ondine is a delightful fantasy that explores and comments on the nature of romantic love and the limits of the human spirit.

Ondine, an elemental water sprite in the lovely form of a 16-year-old maiden, falls head over lily pad in love with the first young man she meets — a rather ordinary knight errant who is attached to his horse and his appetite for supper.

When sprites and humans meet and merge, there is always a bargain and a price, on both sides. The marriage of Ondine to Hans is no exception, and the play's tension is sustained on several levels.

In the first place, what is the price Ondine has agreed to pay for the King of the Sea's permission to wed Hans? In the second, how will she survive the machinations of a royal court given her inability to dissemble and her singleminded devotion to a human being whose spirit is too small to hold her great love?

During the course of the evening, Ondine explores these matters, using fairy tale characters, sophisticated, witty language, and clever shifts in time and place, to tell the story of Ondine and Hans.

Tipping the scales

ONDINE (Julie Hughett) snatches a fish, one of her oceanic cohorts, from the knight Ritter Hans (Jefferson DeMarco) in the Forest Theater production of Jean Giraudoux's Ondine.

AS ONDINE, Julie Hughett is enchantment personified. She not only looks the part of an irresistible magical being, with hair like a golden waterfall and fluid movements that bespeak the sea, but the character she creates is a perfect ingenue on a sprite's scale — extravagant, emotional, romantic in the extreme, and stunningly innocent. Hughett's performance is flawless and delightful and should not be missed.

As Hans, Jefferson DeMarco is appropriately thick-headed, bemused, and imperfect, for he plays the part of an ordinary man coping with an ordinary world. James Goffard is splendid as the Old One, Ondine's "uncle" who is king of the sea, court magician, and bogus fisherman, as the occasion requires. And Jeff Hudelson is a fairy tale king to the nines, a jolly mixture of pompous ego and fatherly wisdom.

Flip Baldwin and Kathleen Sparr successfully create an aged fisherman and his wife trying to cope with their magical founding daughter. And Manuela Shaw is fine as the all-too-human Berthe, Hans' fiancée who loses him to Ondine's irresistible romantic force.

Ondine offers an arresting blend of sophisticated insights and fairy tale context, in which Giraudoux's urbane comments on the nature of human romantic love and its precarious place in everyday life come across in a heightened, entertaining way.

Magically conjured plays-within-the-play create a complex structure that belies the simplicity of the fairy tale setting and keeps the audience's attention.

The Outdoor Forest Theater 75th anniversary production offers color, enchantment, an exquisite lead performance and graceful direction, all of which add up to fine summer theater entertainment in a unique outdoor setting. Dress warmly and enjoy.

Bach Festival concludes; Hidden Valley underway

JUDITH DAVIDOFF and Bruce Lamott completed their survey of J.S. Bach's sonatas for viola da gamba and harpsichord Monday morning, July 29, opening the final week of the Bach Festival. Once again, these fine artists provided much pleasure in their stylish playing.

ROUNDUP

Ticketron outlet opens

The YMCA Visitor Information Center, located at Webster Street and Camino El Estero in Monterey, is the site of a new Ticketron outlet.

Tickets for the Monterey Bay Aquarium, Hearst Castle, state and national parks and cultural and sporting events throughout the United States may be purchased there.

Hours are 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. weekdays; 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday; and 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Sunday. The exception is campsite reservations which go on sale at 10:15 a.m. weekdays and are not available for sale weekends.

Tickets are sold over the counter on a cash basis. No telephone or credit card sales will be accepted.

Yoga group sponsors beach chant

The Siddha Meditation Center of the Monterey Peninsula meets at 7:30 p.m. each Wednesday at 24480 San Luis Ave., Carmel Woods. Programs include chanting, meditation instruction and practice as taught by Swami Chidvilasananda.

The Aug. 14 meeting will feature a long chant on Carmel Meadows Beach. The programs are free. For more information, call 625-5997.

'Down Under' gems and rocks studied

Matt Biewer will present slides on gems and rocks of New Zealand and Australia, together with some small specimens, during the Friday, Aug. 9 gathering of the Carmel Valley Gem and Mineral Society.

The meeting will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the community room of The Crossroads, Rio Road off Highway 1, Carmel. Admission is free.

Over the three weeks of the festival, the other complete series included the solo violin, cello and flute works; flute and harpsichord (some of which are spurious); Brandenburg concertos.

The variety in Bach is seemingly endless, even in six works of one genre for one instrument or group. Handel and Vivaldi have their clichés which make them easy to parody, but not Bach. What an amazing composer!

With the 1985 Bach Festival history, one notes that the shades of Bach and Handel should feel well-honored; Scarlatti may have to wait for his 400th to get equal time. Schuetz is not yet staple fare, but the reception was good for his works and may have made new enthusiasts for this sublime composer.

The upcoming Cabrillo Festival offers an abrupt change of pace, with the opportunity to find out what is happening now. Much as I love baroque music, I found myself listening to Boulez, Stockhausen and Crumb, searching for an answer: is there life after the baroque?

HIDDEN VALLEY'S Summer Orchestral Seminar is underway. The first of the series of concerts was Sunday evening, Aug. 4. These young musicians are impressive, not only for their technical excellence, but for their enthusiasm.

Dvorak's dramatic overture, Husitska, opened the program. This piece is a tribute to the great 15th century Czech hero, Jan Hus, and represents Dvorak at his best. It is tightly written, colorful and exciting. Under the baton of Denis de Coteau, the orchestra gave a highly satisfactory performance.

Major symphonies by Haydn and Brahms rounded out the program.

Haydn's 82nd symphony is the first of a group of six which he wrote in 1786 for Les Concerts de la Loge Olympique in Paris. This organization had a very large orchestra, even larger than that of Hidden Valley: 40 violins, 10 double basses and doubled woodwinds. Hidden Valley had the latter, but only three double basses, and something short of 40 violins.

The performance was adequate, but it lacked the elegance and polish necessary to bring this style to life. The tempo of the minuet was too slow to suggest the character of the dance, and the finale didn't quite crackle. It could be, however, that the available rehearsal time just wasn't enough to chase down every last detail.

Brahms' Second Symphony presents problems to any orchestra, so it should not be a surprise if a group of inexperienced players doesn't do it full justice.

It tended to sprawl and threatened to get out of control. This raises a question of whether it would be better to do a symphonic work the orchestra could handle with ease, or choose a work such as this for the experience.

Obviously, Music Director Henry Holt (who conducted it) chose the latter course. It is certain the young players learned a lot, and they need to get their feet wet sometime.

There were troublesome spots throughout the concert, especially in the areas of intonation and precision in passage work.

But there also was some very lovely playing. The wind players have higher visibility because there are fewer of them, but the strings held their own.

This is a talented group. It is worth the trip and the price is right.

Concerts to begin in October

County symphony season announced

CLARK Etienne Suttle, whose selection as music director and conductor of the Monterey County Symphony triggered a musicians' strike and formation of a new symphony group, has been hired to conduct the opening concert of the 1985-86 county symphony season in October.

In a statement issued from Germany, Maestro Suttle, 32, noted: "In light of the recent discord in our organization, I would like to assure everyone that the Monterey County Symphony will be continuing its tradition of bringing you first class orchestral performances and the best solo artists in the field."

CLARK E. Suttle, newly appointed music director and conductor of the Monterey County Symphony, will lead the opening concert of the season on Oct. 13-15.

Early ticket order advised for weekend aquarium entrance

Weekend admission to the Monterey Bay Aquarium is now by advance reservation, as reported by Ticketron, ticket selling agent for the Cannery Row facility.

Advance tickets are available for a specific admission time at half-hour intervals between the hours of 9:30 a.m. and 4 p.m. on weekends. Visitors may stay as long as they wish up until 6 p.m., when the aquarium closes.

The system has been designed to provide an orderly flow of viewers to the aquarium, opened last October. The Monterey Bay Aquarium was funded by a $40 million gift from David and Lucile Packard.

Same-day tickets must be purchased at the aquarium. Advance reservations can be placed at all Ticketron outlets nationwide and by mail.

Local Ticketron outlets sell aquarium tickets over the counter on a cash-only basis. No telephone or credit card sales will be accepted.

Local Ticketron outlets are located at the Wooden Balloon, 711 Cannery Row, Monterey; the YMCA Visitor Information Center, 600 Camino El Estero, Monterey; and the Sherwood Box Office, 940 N. Main St., Salinas.

Tickets purchased by telephone will carry a $1.50 per ticket service charge. There is a $1 per ticket service charge for tickets bought at Ticketron outlets or by mail.

Admission prices for the Monterey Bay Aquarium are $7 for adults, $3 for children ages three to 12, $5 for seniors over age 65 years of age and $5 for students with valid identification.

Mail order requests can be sent to Ticketron, Box 26430, San Francisco, Calif. 94126.

The opening series of concerts will take place Oct. 13-15 — the same dates when initial concerts by the new Monterey Bay Symphony, led by Maestro Oleg Kovalenko of Carmel, are scheduled.

Guest artist will be Julius Baker, principal flutist with the New York Philharmonic for 18 years.

The Monterey County Symphony season continues with the following planned concert schedule:

- Nov. 17-19, Juliana Markova, piano;
- Jan. 26-28, 1986, David Shifrin, clarinet;
- Feb. 23-25, 1986, Leslie Parnas, cello;
- March 23-25, 1986, Joseph Swensen, violin;
- May 4-6, 1986, Ruth Laredo, piano.

Concerts will be performed on Sunday evenings at King Hall, Naval Postgraduate School, Monterey; Monday evenings at Sunset Theater, Carmel and Tuesday evenings at Sherwood Hall, Salinas. All concerts begin at 8 p.m.

The Carmel series ranges from $50 to $60 for reserved orchestra and balcony seating.

Monterey and Salinas series prices are $50 for adults; $30 for enlisted personnel; $25 for students and $70 for a family card. The family card admits four persons, minimum two adults.

Suttle, who will reside in Monterey County, joined the Phoenix Symphony Orchestra as associate conductor in May 1983. He previously served as associate conductor of the Buffalo Philharmonic after he joined that orchestra as an Exxon Conductor in 1979.

He also occupied positions as assistant conductor of the Richmond, Va. Symphony and conductor of the University of Michigan Orchestra, Ann Arbor.

In addition to his conducting abilities, Suttle is a string bassist. He received the bronze medal from the International Performance Competition in Geneva, Switzerland in 1973. In 1982, he made his debut at Carnegie Hall in recital on string bass.

Suttle received both a bachelor's degree in music in string bass performance and his master's of music degree in conducting from the University of Michigan, Ann Arbor. He has studied conducting with Julius Rudel and Uri Mayer and spent 10 years of private study on string bass with Lawrence Hurst.

According to a press release issued by the Monterey County Symphony Association, Suttle also will guest-conduct the Phoenix, Savannah and Fresno symphonies during the 1985-86 season.

To obtain season tickets, contact the symphony association office in room seven at Sunset Center, San Carlos at Ninth, Carmel. For additional information, call 624-8511 or 758-3594.

WHAT'S PLAYING AT THE MOVIES

Back to the Future: A Steven Spielberg production about a man tossed back in time who meets his parents before he is born. Only one person can help him get back to the present. Co-stars include Christopher Lloyd and Michael J. Fox. Rated PG. At the Regency Theatre. 375-6696.

The Black Cauldron: Newest animated feature from the Disney Studios, features the likes of the evil Horned King, Princess Ellone, Gurgi and Hen Wen. Rated PG. At the Golden Bough Theatre. 624-4044.

Cocoon: The impact of a group of extraterrestrials on a spectrum of humanity characterizes this romantic science fiction fantasy. Stars include Tahnee Welch, Jessica Tandy, Gwen Verdon, Berta Ware, Don Ameche, Hume Cronyn, Jack Gifford and Maureen Stapleton. Rated PG-13. At Cinema 70. 373-4777.

E.T., The Extra-Terrestrial: The biggest grossing movie in history, E.T. explores the relationship between an extra-terrestrial stranded on earth and the young boy (Henry Thomas) who discovers him in his backyard and gives him protective sanctuary, racing against time to get E.T. "home." Steven Spielberg produced and directed. Rated PG. Ends Aug. 8 at the Hill Theatre. 375-2800.

The Emerald Forest: This drama based on a true story tells of a man who returns once annually for 10 years to the Amazon jungle in search of his kidnapped son. Directed by John (Deliverance) Boorman. Rated R. Ends Aug. 8 at the State Three Cinemas. 372-4555.

Fright Night: Roddy McDowall portrays a one-time horror film star whose help is sought by a suburban teenager (William Ragsdale) who discovers a vampire has invaded the neighborhood. Rated R. At the State Three Cinemas. 372-4555.

The Gods Must Be Crazy: Coke bottle prompts strife among African bushmen when the chief, Xi, decides to run with it to the edge of the earth and throw it away. There he encounters "civilized" characters, and the laughter increases. Rated PG. At the Dream Theater. 372-1331.

Mad Max — Beyond Thunderdome: Mel Gibson returns in the third Mad Max adventure. Co-star Tina Turner portrays the villainous Aunt Entity, pitted against Mad Max in the futuristic city of Barbertown. Rated PG-13. At the State Three Cinemas. 372-4555.

National Lampoon's European Vacation: The Griswold family has won a super-deluxe tour from a TV game show, which Clark (Chevy Chase) takes upon himself to videotape. Rated PG-13. At the Valley Cinema. 624-5111.

Rambo: First Blood Part II: Sylvester Stallone again portrays this troubled Vietnam veteran. In this installment Rambo battles to free American prisoners trapped in Vietnam. Rated R. At the State Three Cinemas. 372-4555.

Real Genius: Comedy stars Gabe Jarret, Val Kilmer, Michelle Meyrink and William Atherton. Martha Coolidge directs. Rated PG. At the Crossroads Cinema. 624-2792.

Silverado: Lawrence Kasdan directed this Western adventure about four reluctant heroes who become allies to confront the injustices surrounding them. Co-stars include John Cleeve as the Sheriff of Turley, Kevin Kline, Scott Glenn, Rosanna Arquette and Kevin Costner. Rated PG-13. At the Carmel Village Theatre. 624-5341.

Summer Rental: A family vacation at the beach is the stuff of this comedy directed by Carl Reiner. Co-stars include John Candy and Richard Crenna. Rated PG. At the State Three Cinemas. 372-4555.

Weird Science: Bored out of their wits on a Friday night, two not very athletic and not very popular high schoolers produce a centerfold-worthy woman while toying with their personal computer. John Hughes wrote and directed the comedy. At the Dream Theater. 372-1331.

THE SCOTTISH Country Dancers of the Monterey Peninsula, accompanied by bagpipers, will open the entertainment at the International Folk Art Festival. The event will begin at 11 a.m. on the lawn at Colton Hall on Pacific Street in Monterey. Admission is free.

World food, music and art celebrated in Monterey

CULTURE and foods of the world will be showcased in Monterey when the International Folk Art Festival is launched Sunday, Aug. 11 at the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art and Colton Hall.

The festival will take place from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. Carmel cartoonist Gus Arriola will doff his sombrero as guest of honor during this benefit for the Museum on Wheels Program.

Greek, Scottish, Italian, Filipino, Thai, Russian and Polynesian dancing and music will be the featured entertainment. Admission to the festival is free, and an "around the world" selection of foods will be available for sale.

The festival is sponsored by the museum association, the Jesters and the Parade of Nations. It is planned in conjunction with the current exhibition of folk art in the museum collection and the 10th anniversary of Museum on Wheels.

Museum on Wheels is a mobile program that offers art instruction, demonstrations and shows to elementary school children in Monterey, San Benito, Santa Cruz and San Luis Obispo counties.

Flags and a hot air balloon will mark the site of the International Folk Art Festival in the vicinity of the museum, 559 Pacific St., Monterey. For additional festival information, call 372-7591.

Hu Chi Chung show opens at Zantman

EXPRESSIONISTIC views of nature by Chinese-born artist Hu Chi Chung will be featured in the Zantman Art Galleries of Carmel.

The artist will be present during an opening reception from 4 p.m. to 7 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 10 at the Sixth Avenue and Mission Street Zantman location in Carmel. Cocktails and hors d'oeuvres will be served during this opening.

After he became one of the most popular artists in Taiwan, Hu immigrated to the United States in 1971. His large canvases capture such subjects as koi and lotus blossoms, dreaming figures and galloping horses.

Hu's paintings are also exhibited at the El Prado galleries in Sedona, Ariz. and Santa Fe, N.M.

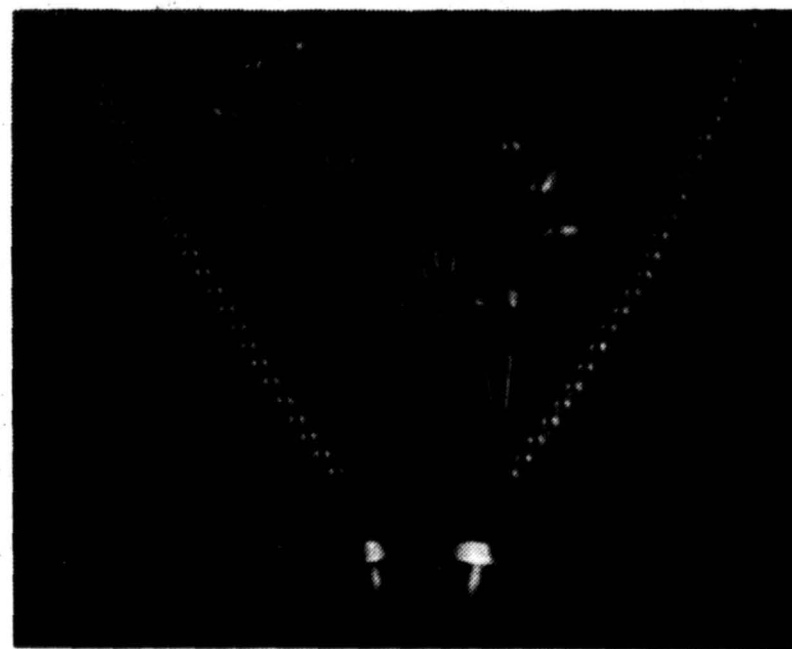

Hours at the Zantman Art Galleries are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. daily, 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Sunday. For more information about this show, call the galleries at 624-8314.

FOOTHILLS HERD, a 40-by-60-inch canvas by Hu Chi Chung, reflects one of the artist's favored subjects: galloping horses. He will be present during an opening reception of his works, planned from 4 to 7 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 10 at the Zantman Art Galleries in Carmel. For details, call 624-8314.

Club Place brings back good old-fashioned value in Carmel Valley.

Remember the good old days when a real sense of value prevailed in the housing market?

Well, Club Place is bringing the good times back. With the best true-blue value Carmel Valley has seen.

Nestled in the 1,700-acre private preserve of Carmel Valley Ranch, Club Place is built alongside the magnificent 18-hole Pete Dye championship golf course. And its adjacent to a superb tennis club with 12 pro courts.

Consisting of only 46 brilliantly designed townhomes, Club Place is very private, very exclusive. With such marvelous architectural touches as vaulted ceilings in some plans, cathedral and nine foot ceilings in others. All living rooms have fireplaces. As do many master bedroom suites. And there are whirlpool baths, greenhouse-windowed kitchens, redwood decks, family rooms, and countless pleasures that hark back to the days when builders built real honest value into their homes.

Current prices for our lavish Carmel Valley townhomes start at just $264,000. Nothing in the Valley even comes close.

But please hurry. There are only a limited number of townhomes remaining.

Two and three bedroom, two and three bath townhomes from $264,000 to $397,000.

Winner of Builder's Choice Award 1984

How to get to Club Place Drive south on Highway 1 to Carmel Valley Road. Proceed about 6 miles to Robinson Canyon Road. Turn right to Carmel Valley Ranch gatehouse and you will be directed from there. If in doubt, call us at (408) 625-5991.

Stamps and coins star at show

The Monterey Holiday Inn will be transformed into a philatelic and numismatic center on Sunday, Aug. 11 during the stamp and coin show. Admission is free from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Fifty dealers from throughout the West will display their wares. Door prizes of coin albums will be awarded.

Stamps to be displayed include the first American stamps, issued in 1847. Coins to be presented include silver dollars, proof sets and commemoratives.

New Forum to present seminar

The New Forum of Carmel, a group established to seek alternatives to nuclear war, will conduct an all-day seminar Saturday, Aug. 10.

"Project Victory" is designed to establish a new view on how Americans can take the lead in building a secure world in the nuclear age. It will be led by Dr. Gary Lapid and Craig Schindler, J.D., Ph.D.

The seminar will take place from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. at the First Presbyterian Church, 501 Eldorado, Monterey. Registration is by mail and forms are available by writing The New Forum, Box 5595, Carmel, 93922. For details, call 624-1803.

Blood pressure checked free

Free blood pressure clinics are planned throughout the county during August by the Monterey County Health Department. This service will be offered in Carmel Valley from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. on Wednesday, Aug. 21, at the Mid-Carmel Valley Fire Station, 8455 Carmel Valley Road.

In Carmel, the checkups will take place 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. on Wednesdays, Aug. 14 and 28, at the Red Cross Chapter House, Dolores Street and Eighth Avenue.

For further information, contact the Hypertension Control Program, 373-8943.

Kids' nights out continue

Children from six to 12 years of age are invited to participate in "Kids' Saturday Night Out." The program is scheduled from 5:30 p.m. to 11:30 p.m. each Saturday at the Monterey Youth Center, 777 Pearl St., Monterey.

The evening offers youngsters a supervised program of active games, swimming and feature-length movies and is sponsored by the Monterey Parks and Recreation Department. Fee is $5 for Monterey residents, $6 for non-residents. For details, call 646-3866.

Alliance serves Mexican dinner

Mexican food will be served Saturday, Aug. 10 during a benefit for the Alliance for the Mentally Ill of Monterey County.

Tickets are $25 each and are fully tax-deductible. The meal will be served from 6 p.m. to 8 p.m. at the Garin Company Ranch cookhouse near Salinas. Tickets include transportation to the dinner from the Monterey Peninsula College parking lot.

To reserve tickets, call 375-3323.

International movies screened

Women of the Night, The American Friend and The Big Deal on Madonna Street will be presented by the Monterey Peninsula Film Society.

Directed by Kenji Mizoguchi, Women of the Night is a 1948 film in Japanese with subtitles. It offers a nightmare glimpse into the world of prostitutes, narcotics dealers and street gangs in post-war Japan. Women of the Night will be shown Thursday, Aug. 8.

Screened Friday through Sunday, Aug. 9-11 will be the 1977 German film, The American Friend. Wim Wenders's production investigates an ordinary artist who is employed as an assassin by a French gangster. Bruno Ganz, Dennis Hopper, Nicholas Ray and Samuel Fuller co-star. The film is in German with subtitles.

The Big Deal on Madonna Street will be shown Wednesday, Aug. 14. The 1960 production, in Italian with subtitles, is a spoof of a group of down-on-their-luck types who try to pull off the perfect crime. It stars Marcello Mastroianni, Renato Salvatori, Vittorio Gassman and Claudia Cardinale.

All films begin at 8:15 p.m. in Morse Auditorium, 440 Van Buren St., Monterey. Tickets are $3.50 general, $2.75 students and seniors, $2 for film society members. For details, call 659-4795 between 5 p.m. and show time.

THE ULTIMATE CARMEL COTTAGE OPEN FOR INSPECTION:

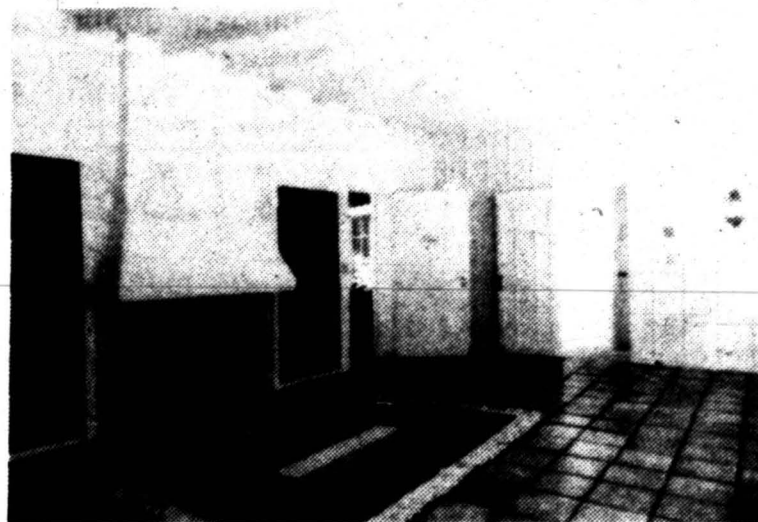

Sat. and Sun. 1-4
Southwest Corner 8th and
Santa Fe Streets

The elements which make up the perfect Carmel Cottage are location, charm, privacy, utility, and flexibility. Some houses have a few of these qualities but only rarely do you find that home which "has it all."

This property consists of two full Carmel Lots, located just two blocks from the corner of the commercial district, yet very quiet and very private. The beach is a short walk, as are Sunset Center and the Forest Theatre. Mature oaks surround the house, yet the large stone patio has sun all through the day.

The home was built in the 1930's...designed by famed San Francisco architect Gardiner Daly. In the past six months it has been treated to the most painstaking restoration and remodel we have ever witnessed. New wiring, new plumbing, new roof, new tile floors, gorgeous new bathrooms, and bright and cheery new kitchen.

Statistically, the home offers two bedrooms (master with fireplace), two baths, large central living room, large kitchen with breakfast nook, lots of storage and closets, plus a detached two car garage. A special bonus comes with the property in the form of full plans and all permits for a new double garage with guest house attached. Call us for more details or drop by for a treat, we know you will love this house. $305,000.

HILLSIDE PARADISE

JUST LISTED in Carmel Highlands...a two-level contemporary redwood home designed by John Gamble to conform to a hillside acre and to capture tree-framed ocean vistas. From the upper deck, entry steps lead to a living room with a free-standing fireplace, paneling, and beamed ceiling. Extending from the living room is a dining area with built-in cabinet. The kitchen has cabinets faced with redwood, custom tile counters, and desk with view of the ocean. Three bedrooms, two baths, laundry, workroom, and double garage. $335,000.

DUST OFF YOUR DREAMS

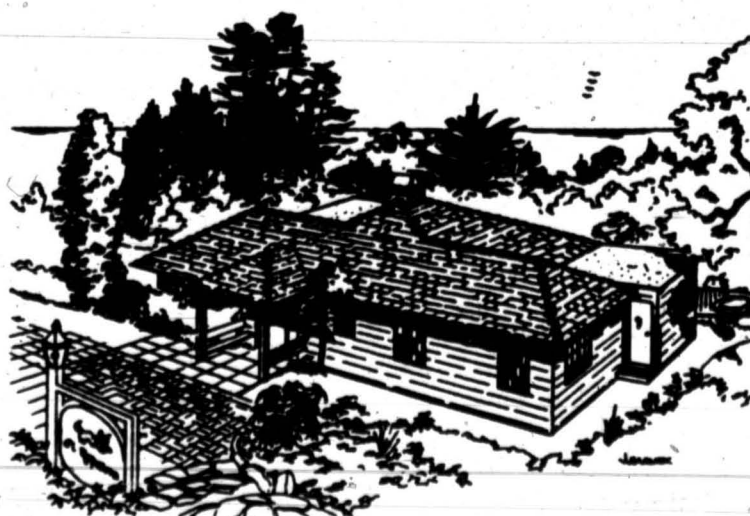

AND GAZE at the spectacular views of gleaming white sand, dazzling surf, and deep blue waters of Carmel Bay from this wonderful home on Carmel's Scenic Road. Water views from living room, dining room, and master bedrooms. Four bedrooms, three and one-half baths, and GUEST HOUSE with its own view. And finally, a big, big oversized lot. $1,200,000.

"COTSWOLD"

JUST LISTED...an unusual home secluded behind a discreet stone wall extending along the Seventeen Mile Drive in the REAL Pebble Beach. Set atop a slight rise to afford ocean views, the house is reached by a winding drive lined by mature trees. It's built of Monterey shale, and it could indeed have been transplanted from the picturesque English countryside from which it derives its name. All front rooms of the house command dramatic views of the ocean from Pescadero Point to Point Lobos. There are 5 bedrooms, each with its special charm, plus a suite of rooms for staff, glassed-in galleria, and open courtyard. By appointment only to qualified buyers. $1,350,000.

THE VIEW IS FREE

FROM THIS GRACIOUS older home in Carmel Highlands, near Highlands Inn and Point Lobos. There's an ever-changing panorama of water, sky, and clouds from the large living room, and if it's space you want, you'll find a dining room, den, three bedrooms, three baths, and a completely charming GUEST HOUSE (600 square feet). The lot size is one acre. Offered at $325,000.

CARMEL COMMERCIAL
$350,000

This 45'x100' commercial lot currently has an older home on it; rented for $1,000/mo. The lot is zoned for commercial service with 3 apartments above the ground level. The slightly sloping lot would make construction of underground parking easy. The financing is easy too, $300,000 down & the owner will carry the balance.

CARMEL OCEAN FRONT
1 OPPORTUNITY ONLY

Rare, even in Carmel, is this lot located on the Westside of Scenic Road. Yes, that means right in the white sand itself. Picture yourself walking out your front door directly onto the beach or having an unobstructed view of Carmel bay. Better yet, this lot purchase includes complete plans with all approvals by appropriate agencies so you may start building tomorrow, and if you hurry, be in by Xmas.
